Grand Jury Clears Mrs. Myrtle Guyol In Death of Mate

No Bill, Dismissing Accusations Made By Attorney of Odie D. Fluker, Returned After 4 Days.

WIDOW, WITNESSES IN OFFICE FIGHT

Fulton Jurors Will Be Discharged Today Following Routine Session.

Mrs. Myrtle Guyol, widow of Eddie Guyol, was cleared of any part in the murder of her husband yesterday by the Fulton county grand jury as that body concluded a four-day investigation into the slaying of the lottery chief by refusing to indict her.

The jury, acting on a technical charge of murder placed against her on a bill of indictment, returned a "no" bill, which dismisses accusations made against her by Attorney Russell G. Turner.

The accusation was placed against Mrs. Guyol by Turner, counsel for Odie V. Fluker, as Fluker was resented last week in the electric chair for the Guyol slaying. Fluker was convicted of the murder in November, 1936.

Witness-Room Fight.

Investigation of the slaying was resumed yesterday by a witness-room melee involving Mrs. Guyol, Walter Cutcliffe, Charles T. Head, Arnesville policeman, and several other witnesses after Head testified before the jury that Cutcliffe told him soon after the Guyol slaying in 1935 that Mrs. Guyol murdered her husband.

The inquiry was called after Turner had accused Mrs. Guyol in court and stated Cutcliffe and Detective Lieutenant McCrary were a "conspiracy" in connection with the case.

Fisticuffs occurred when Head came from the grand jury room and was called to identify Cutcliffe, who was seated in the witness room.

Head identified Ralph Forrester, seated beside Cutcliffe and wearing a hat Cutcliffe had worn, as Cutcliffe.

General Melee.

A general melee followed, in which Cutcliffe, Forrester and Head lunged at each other. Mrs. Guyol entered by pulling the Arnesville officer's hair. Lieutenant McCrary, Deputy Sheriff L. Hardy, several policemen and detectives broke up the scuffle before any blows were struck.

Less than five minutes after the scuffle the grand jury sent out a "no" bill, dismissing the accusations of murder placed against Mrs. Guyol on a "test" bill drawn by a legal technician.

Grand jurors announced they could follow the "no" bill with a statement for Atlanta newspapers after a conference with Solicitor General John A. Boykin, however, Colonel B. L. Bugg announced there will be no statement.

The grand jury will be discharged today after attending to routine business. General present-

WALSH DENOUNCES POLITICS IN RELIEF

'As a Democrat,' Member of Election Probe Body Assails Misuse of Funds

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP) Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, member of the senate campaign funds committee, denounced any political use of relief funds today as dragging "the relief of human misery" down to the level of "gutter politics."

Walsh began his statement by mentioning a recent speech in which Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, called on relief recipients to keep their "friends" in power.

As a committee member, Walsh said, he would make no comment on this remark, but "as a Democrat" he was "constrained to say" that anyone using federal funds to influence votes was a "traitor to President Roosevelt and the Democratic party."

No Further Action.

His statement was issued just after the committee had decided to take no further action on the Williams speech which, earlier in the week, it called "unfortunate."

The committee also approved a questionnaire to be filled out monthly by all senatorial candidates, asking whether they used, or had any knowledge of the use of, federal funds to influence their election.

The committee decided that, lacking specific complaints from any candidate, it could take no action "at this time" on the recent

Breath-Taking Race for Oompah To End as Firecrackers Explode

Today is the first big day of the grand and glorious finale of the breath-taking race for Oompah of Constitution comic character Election Day is Monday, July 4. The Official Ballot will be found on the Comic Page of today's Constitution. Each reader is eligible to vote for his or her favorite character of the daily and Sunday Constitution funnies. Read Colonel Whoopen Blast's illuminating comments on the state of affairs and you'll discover, strangely enough, that his column goes binging right into the Ballot. Remarkable, isn't it?

By COLONEL WHOOPEN BLAST.

Political Commentator Extraordinary.

Well, friends, we're getting along. Pretty soon now we'll know all the matter of fact, would be getting us down, if it were possible to get a Blast down, which of course ranks with the irresistible force-immovable body contest in being just about unthinkable.

I'm having a hard time with the candidates, trying to keep some semblance of order, stifle last-minute efforts to stampede the voting, distract the younger element from their excitement, preserve the ballot boxes safe from intruding (and vote-laden) fingers, generally hold things in the road for Election Day, next Monday, July 4.

In all my career in politics—and I'm the man, as you know, who first instructed Henry Clay in not drawing to an inside straight—I've never participated in an election like this one. Honest, to the core. Transparent as

M'CORMICK BODY BELIEVED FOUND ON ISOLATED CLIFF

Recovery and Positive Identification Impossible Until Late Today, Forester Announces.

INDIANS DISCOVER MISSING CHICAGOAN

Located 'Approximately' on Opposite Side of Cliff From Companion.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 30.—(AP)—A body, believed to be that of missing Medill McCormick, Chicago publishing heir, was found today on a cliff, north of Sandia peak.

A statement issued by Frank C. W. Pooler, United States regional forester, said:

"While positive identification has not been made, it has been established with practical certainty that a body found early this afternoon on a cliff north of Sandia peak, is the body of Medill McCormick."

"The discovery was made by an organized crew of Isleta and Sandia Indians, under the leadership of Marion Peace, of the United States Indian Service, while working in close proximity to a Forest Service searching party."

"The body was in such an inaccessible spot that it will be impossible to recover it until late Friday."

"On the basis of present information, it now seems that Medill McCormick's body was found approximately on the opposite side of the cliff from where the body of Richard Whitmer was recovered last Friday."

A week ago Wednesday, on June 22, McCormick in the company of Richard Whitmer, 20, left his mother's big ranch house on the outskirts of Albuquerque to climb towering, mile-high Sandia peak, considered by expert climbers as one of the stoutest tests of climbing ability in this section of the southern Rockies.

The car, with the boys' effects, was found there a few hours before the discovery of "Dicky" Whitmer's broken body at the foot of the Shield.

Both Whitmer and McCormick had climbed before, often together, getting their skill at Fountain Valley school in Colorado Springs under the tutelage of Dr. Frances M. Froelicher, headmaster, and one of the leaders of the climbing fraternity who searched for McCormick on the peak.

He was the son of the late Senator Medill McCormick and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, who later married Albert Simms, of Albuquerque.

Barbara's Son Placed Under Court's Control

LONDON, June 30.—(AP)—The infant son and heir of the squabbling Haugwitz-Reventlows was reported tonight to have been made a ward in chancery by his mother as his father traveled to London to face a Bow Street police court summons.

Two-year-old Lance Haugwitz-Reventlow, under the reported move, would be under control of the court until he reaches 21. Neither his father, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, nor his mother, Countess Barbara, American-born Woolworth heiress, could make a ruling affecting him without the sanction of the court. The application to place the child in custody of the court was said to have been made today before a master in chambers by Countess Barbara's costly counsel, Sir Patrick Hastings.

Son Is Born to Wife Of 'Man Mountain'

LOS ANGELES, June 30.—(AP) Man Mountain Dean, 317-pound bearded wrestler, and an avowed candidate for the Georgia legislature, today received a telegram from his wife at Norcross, Ga., advising that he was a father. He said the telegram told him the newcomer was "a boy, weight eleven three-quarter pounds."

ROOSEVELT MAKES NEW DECLARATION DENOUNCING WAR

Nation's Chief Executive Reiterates Policy of Good Neighbor at New York World's Fair Grounds.

EDUCATION GROUP HEARS PRESIDENT

Admonishes This Country to Keep Bright Fires of Freedom, Liberties.

Texts of the President's Addresses Appear in Page 8.

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt made a new declaration against war today and reiterated the policy of the good neighbor as a model for the rest of the world, at the New York World's Fair Grounds where he helped lay the cornerstone of the $3,000,000 federal project.

Later, he traveled in his open car over a mile of dusty road to tell thousands of teachers here for the National Education Association convention:

"The only real capital of a nation is its natural resources and its human beings. So long as we take care of and make the most of both of them, we shall survive as a strong nation, a successful nation and a progressive nation—whether or not the bookkeepers say other kinds of budgets are from time to time out of balance."

He predicted to teachers assembled at the site of the education building on the fair grounds that history would say his "long-range budget" had been balanced.

Fires of Freedom.

Mr. Roosevelt said:

(1)—Spoke of countries where libraries have been burned, learned people exiled, universities dispersed and news, art and literature censored as having turned back "the clock of civilization." He did so without naming any country.

(2)—Admonished this country to keep bright the fires of freedom and civil liberties, to redouble efforts to maintain a free press and to provide a safe place for eternal truths.

(3)—Declared for state and local control of schools and their curricula, with the federal government supplementing only the resources of the poorer communities.

(4)—Predicted that "the ultimate victory of tomorrow is with democracy, and through democracy with education, for no people can be kept eternally ignorant or eternally enslaved."

Fair officials estimated 25,000 heard the NEA address.

Long-Range Sheet.

"Before we can think straight as a nation," he said, "we have to consider—in addition to the old kind—a new kind of governmental balance sheet—a long-range sheet which shows survival values for our population and for our democratic way of living, balanced against what we have paid for them."

The President told the teachers "For many years I, like you, have been a pedagogue, striving to inculcate in the youth of America a greater knowledge of and in-

Meet in Peace Where Once They Fought

Paying tribute to the dead of both sides in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg are Martin A. Loop (left) 96-year-old Union veteran, and General John W. Harris, 90-year-old Confederate veteran. Loop now lives in Sacramento, Cal., and Harris resides in Oklahoma City, Okla. Seventy-five years ago their comrades died on that Pennsylvania field.

Age Hasn't Tamed Veterans, Warned To Lessen Gadding

Yank Admits He Was 'Shooting Your Way' to Wounded 'Reb.'

The Constitution has engaged Brigadier General M. Y. Griggs, of the North Georgia Brigade, United Confederate Veterans, to give its readers a "Vet's Eye View" of the Gettysburg reunion. His third dispatch follows:

BY GENERAL M. Y. GRIGGS.

GETTYSBURG, June 30.—Our day begins tomorrow. But we old boys today were just sitting around swapping yarns. The camps look like a sea of tents and cover many acres.

A gentleman with a little boy stopped me on the street, and said, "My little boys wants to meet a Confederate veteran."

Each train brings more new faces and more veterans. It is good to see the boys of the blue and those in gray meeting in a spirit of true brotherhood, giving a friendly grip, and laughing at jests of days long gone.

I heard one Yankee greet a Confederate veteran. "Hey, Johnnie Reb," he called out, and Johnnie answered, "Hey, are you the Damn Yankee who did this?" showing a scar on his chin.

"Maybe," said the Yank. "I was shooting your way."

I was talking with a Union vet-

One-Time Enemies Tramp Ceaselessly Over Former Battlefield.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 30. (AP)—Two thousand of the nation's oldest men—veterans of a war three-quarters of a century ago—were urged today to take it easy "lest they fill the hospitals in this battlefield town by having too good a time."

"It would be a good thing if all the veterans could be put in a hospital for 12 hours after they arrive, just to give them a rest," commented Lieutenant Colonel Paul R. Hawley, of the United States army medical corps, as additional men from the ranks of the Blue and Gray were brought in for treatment.

Most of them suffered from over-exertion. None is in serious condition. Four have been transferred from the temporary army base hospital to the little Gettysburg hospital, which is being reserved for cases needing surgical treatment.

Doctors there said that with the patients already there, from the town and county, there was room for only four more of the veterans here for the last reunion of the Blue and Gray.

Beds have been reserved for emergency use in hospitals in 11 surrounding towns.

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 30.—(AP)—after the shooting, accused Nelson of shooting his son, Gibson said.

The solicitor said Nelson, former filling station operator at Douglas, told him he and the two women had planned to kill the boy for about two weeks.

"He said two nights before the child was killed they met and decided on how the $900 insurance money would be divided," Gibson asserted.

"It was agreed," he quoted Nelson, "that Mary Kent should have $200 in cash, that Verna Mae Fowler should have the automobile clear of any indebtedness, and that Nelson should pay the $900 funeral expenses, and have the rest of the $700."

"Nelson stated," the solicitor added, "that he told the girls from

THREE COUNTRIES AGREE ON LIMIT OF 16-INCH GUNS

England Planning Only To Construct Vessels of 40,000 Tons Under 1938 Building Program.

AMERICANS SOUGHT 18-INCH ARMAMENT

Experts Believe Two Types of Fleets Have Been Created by Pact.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—The United States' hands became free today for the building of 45,000-ton battleships armed with 16-inch guns.

An agreement with Great Britain and France announced in London permits the three governments to build the craft, vastly more powerful than anything now afloat. The pact arises from reports that Japan was building huge craft beyond the former treaty limit of 35,000 tons.

As to the United States, construction probably will be started after four 35,000-ton warships, already decided upon, have been laid down. In addition to these four, two other 35,000-ton craft, the North Carolina and the Washington, already are being built.

Britain Plans Ships.

Through invocation of the "escalator clause" in the 1936 naval treaty, the United States, Britain and France lifted the 35,000-ton limits of that treaty today. Britain, through an announcement in the house of commons by Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, declared her intention of building two 40,000-ton ships under the 1938 program and of sticking to that limit if other European powers did so.

To officials here this had the appearance of creating two types of fleet, the Pacific and the Atlantic. In the Atlantic the maximum would be 40,000 tons, in the Pacific 45,000.

A similar distinction was made in the naval treaty between Britain and the Soviet Union whereby the Soviets agreed to adhere to the limitations of the 1936 treaty for their European fleet but not for their Asiatic fleet.

Plans Require Year.

Today's announcement may mean that Britain will get an earlier start than the United States on building warcraft larger than 35,000 tons. The United States cannot possibly lay down the 45,000-ton ships until next year. Plans alone require a year to complete.

President Roosevelt was given

June Was 'Cool,' But, Oh! July, Says Mindling

After one of the coolest June months on record for the last 10 years, Atlantans may expect July to bring a decisive rise in temperature, George W. Mindling, meteorologist at the United States Weather Bureau, announced yesterday.

Not since June, 1928, when an average temperature of 74.1 degrees was recorded, has the city enjoyed as cool a month of June as that just closed, the weather bureau official said, the average for the month being slightly under 75 degrees.

While the weather today is expected to be partly cloudy, temperature extremes are expected to range from 64 degrees to 86 degrees. Averages yesterday were recorded at 65 and 79.

Rainfall during the month just closed was somewhat above normal, Mindling reported, precipitation being recorded at 4.19 inches. Normal rainfall for Atlanta is 3.74 inches. Many areas contiguous to Atlanta had an even more abnormal rainfall than was reported here.

HEARING DATE SET IN LABOR CHARGES

Fulton Metal Bed Accused of Unfair Practices.

Charges that the Fulton Metal Bed Company of Atlanta has engaged in unfair labor practices will be aired before the National Labor Relations Board at a hearing July 14, it was announced yesterday by Judge Charles N. Fiedelson, regional director.

In a brief filed by the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, an affiliate of the CIO, it is alleged that the company coerced and intimidated its employees for a year in efforts to prevent unionization, and that in June, 1937, four employees were discharged because of union affiliation.

The regional director also announced that an order had been received from the NLRB at Washington enjoining the General Shoe Corporation, a Nashville, Tenn., concern operating in Atlanta, to refrain from interfering with the rights of its employees to organize, and to reinstate, with full pay, certain of its employees that had been discharged for union activity.

Action of the board followed investigation of charges filed against the General Shoe Corporation by the Textile Workers' Organizing Committee on June 26, 1937, and heard before Trial Examiner William H. Griffin.

Cuban Jacket Thrills Youthful Atlantan

A Cuban jacket holds more thrills for young Craig Dwyer than the legal robes worn by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dwyer. Here is Craig with Miss Gloria Menacho, who is visiting his mother, showing him a "guayabera," a jacket worn by little boys in Havana.

Cuban Girl, Visiting Friend Here, Travels Unchaperoned First Time

Miss Gloria Menacho is guest of Mrs. Frances Craighead Dwyer; 'Crazy About Your American Men, Especially Southern Ones,' She Says.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
A Cuban girl who delves into legal statistics for the Havana court of appeals, arrived in Atlanta yesterday, traveling unchaperoned for the first time in her life.

She is Miss Gloria Menacho, the guest of Mrs. Frances Craighead Dwyer, one of Atlanta's best known lawyers, at her home on Brookhaven drive. Miss Menacho, who like all young women of her country, always travels with some member of their family, said she felt "very important all by herself."

"I have never been alone before," she said, "it is always with my mother, my sister, or some member of the family that I travel. The trip, however, was not hard. The American people were nice to help me get on the right train. I came over from Havana by plane. I am crazy about your American men, the southern ones especially."

The up-to-date Cuban girl goes in for legal and architectural careers, according to Miss Menacho. Her studies, however, were interrupted by a revolution. She was a student at the University of Havana when trouble began and when peace came she did not

Ramspeck and C. L. Wood Are Only Remaining Candidates.

J. L. R. Boyd, Atlanta attorney, withdrew yesterday from the fifth district congressional race.

Robert Ramspeck, seeking reelection, and C. L. Wood, Atlanta businessman, are the remaining candidates.

Boyd said he would seek, as president of the Society for Constitutional Revision, "public opinion designed to end social conflict with permanent policies as to distribution, suffrage, justice, crime, debt, commerce and bureaucracy."

He announced his withdrawal was "because the time is too short for the people to judge the effectiveness and liberalism of the far-reaching fundamental acts of the 75th congress and because there was indicated in several of such acts a disposition to protect the consumers and debtors victimized by modern productive and sales methods."

Brownfield Leaves Valdosta Chamber

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 30.—(F) Leroy Brownfield, for the past several months secretary of the Valdosta and Lowndes County Chamber of Commerce, tendered his resignation to the board of directors last night. It was accepted "with regrets," Horace Caldwell, president of the chamber, said.

Brownfield said he acted because he has been offered another position "which I cannot afford to reject."

Directors said they will act at once to fill the vacancy.

however, is a visit for Miss Menacho to the law office of Mrs. Dwyer, who is the attorney for the Legal Aid Society and related agencies.

Charm by Trees.
Miss Menacho is making her first visit to Atlanta, but not to America, for she spends many summers at her family's summer home near Albany, N. Y. She is charmed with the pine and spruce trees here because, she says, "they are so different from our palms."

Girls in her country adopt all the American customs and like them, she said. She speaks splendid English, tempered with a foreign accent, for all conversation in Havana and with members of her family is in her native tongue. She is a great-granddaughter of Antonio Ruge, the first ambassador to Cuba from Italy.

The friendship between the two young women lawyers began through the acquaintance of Ramon Menacho, Miss Menacho's brother, with Mrs. Dwyer and her husband, Francis Dwyer, during a recent trip to Havana with Dr. and Mrs. Joe Read, of Atlanta.

Yesterday the two young women were busy discussing various subjects—but nothing legal—as the young visitor was becoming accustomed to Atlanta and an "American family."

THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES

BY Sally Saver

Celebrate the Fourth Safely,
With Picnic Basket of Food

A picnic is just the thing if you want your Fourth of July celebration to go off with a safe and sound bang. This young lady is preparing the family basket for the annual neighborhood gathering. Why don't you have a picnic, too?

It's easy to stage a bang-up Fourth of July celebration without risking burnt fingers. Give firecrackers, pinwheels and cannon balls their traditional stardom on Independence Day but substitute luscious food counterparts for explosives.

The juvenile set will forget to yearn for the smell of powder if you give them plenty of tempting goodies and a supply of harmless noise-makers to satisfy their love of a big commotion. There won't be a single dud among your candy and food fireworks if you use this failure proof menu and these recipes:

PICNIC FOR TWELVE.
*Ham Loaf *Potato Salad
Dill Pickles Radishes
Stuffed Olives
Buttered Rolls Apple Jelly
Pineapple Sherbert
(Packed in Dry Ice)
*Chocolate Cake
Coffee for Grownups
Gingerale for Youngsters
*Fourth of July Stars.
*Recipes in this issue.

Ham Loaf.
4 cups chopped cooked ham
1 cup chopped fresh pork
1 cup soft bread.
2 eggs or 4 yolks.
1-4 cup finely chopped onions.
1-4 cup chopped green peppers.
1-3 cup chopped celery.
1 tablespoon chopped parsley.
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-4 teaspoon pepper.
3 tablespoons butter, melted.
1 cup milk.
Mix ingredients and pack into 2 loaf pans, buttered. Bake 50 minutes in moderately slow oven, cool 5 minutes and remove from pans.

Potato Salad.
4 cups diced cooked potatoes.
4 hard-cooked eggs, diced.
1 cup diced cucumbers.
1-4 cup finely chopped sweet-pickles.
1 tablespoon chopped onions (optional).
1-2 teaspoon salt.
1-4 teaspoon pepper.
2 tablespoons chopped pimientos.
1 cup salad dressing.
Mix 1-2 dressing with remaining ingredients. Chill and serve in bowl lined with shredded lettuce. Top with remaining dressing.

Chocolate Cake.
(Large Sheet Cake.)
1-3 cup fat.
1 cup sugar.
1 cup thick sour cream.
2 squares chocolate, melted.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1 egg.
1-8 teaspoon salt.
2 cups flour.
1 teaspoon soda.
Cream fat and sugar. Add rest of ingredients and beat 2 minutes. Pour into shallow pan lined with waxed paper and bake 35 minutes in moderately slow oven. Cool and frost.

Frosting.
1 egg white, beaten.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
1-8 cup butter.
1 tablespoon hot cream.
1 cup confectioner's sugar.
Mix ingredients and beat until creamy. Spread on cake.
Fourth of July Stars.
4 squares unsweetened chocolate
1-2 cup butter.
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 pound confectioners (4X) sugar
1-4 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1-2 cup nut meats, finely chopped

Melt chocolate and butter together. Beat egg slightly; add confectioners' sugar, sweetened condensed milk and vanilla and blend thoroughly. Add chocolate and butter, blending thoroughly. Fold in nut meats. Scrape mixture into buttered pan (8x8x2 inches). Chill in refrigerator or cool place for several hours. Cut in squares to serve or cut with a cookie cutter and a sharp knife into star shapes and oblong firecrackers.

Salad fillings of salmon or tuna with chopped or sliced ripe olives and chopped cucumber, radish or celery make good substantial sandwiches for these picnic requirements. Cheese and eggs blend well with ripe olives, too, which have a superior faculty of "sticking to the ribs," making them favorite picnic fare, regardless of their chewy goodness between tender slices of bread.

CANTALOUPE RECIPE CONTEST.

Do you serve melons often during the summer? There is nothing so tempting to look at as a luscious melon, nor anything so deliciously cool, sweet and juicy to the taste. Cantaloupes are at their best right now and Sally Saver's contest this week gives you some unusual suggestions for their use.

Melon balls are, of course, very popular but if you don't have a French scoop to work with, dice the melon meat in half-inch cubes.
Melons may be chilled by keeping them over night in the refrigerator or by scooping the meat into balls and chilling them in sherbet glasses. Either plan is better than the habit of putting cracked ice into the cavity of a melon. Try this recipe for melon mush sometime. It is really good.

Melon Mush.
If you have automatic refrigerator

it is easy to make a melon mush, using fairly ripe cantaloupe or honey dew, or a mixture of the two, pressed through a coarse sieve, sweetened to taste and flavored with lemon or orange juice. Pour into tray and freeze it to a soft mush as you would any fruit ice or sherbet.

One of today's prize winning suggestions for using cantaloupe was sent in by Mrs. Gene Miller, 1605 North Fourth street, Monroe, La. This unusual and attractive cake will be sure to please you.

3, Rome, suggests this breakfast recipe that was enjoyed by her father, now 86 years old, since he was a boy during Civil War days, and a great favorite with her family today. Mrs. Foster writes that it is equally as good for lunch, served with fried chicken, cream gravy and iced tea.

Civil War Cantaloupe.

For breakfast, broil Canadian bacon in butter until light brown, put on platter, add a small amount of water, brought to a boil, in the frying pan where meat was cooked, making a brown gravy. Cut chilled cantaloupe in natural sizes and serve on breakfast plates with bacon and gravy plus hot biscuit and drip coffee.

Mrs. Julia A. Carter, of Union Point, Ga., sends in two recipes for cantaloupe pie. They will be new to many people.

Cantaloupe Pie.

1-2 cantaloupe
1 cup of sugar
2 cups of water
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 heaping tablespoon butter.
Slice and peel cantaloupe and cut into inch strips, add remainder of ingredients and cook until cantaloupe is tender. Put in a deep baking dish.

Make a pie crust and put it over the pie. Bake until crust is brown. When done take out of oven and press crust down in the pie.

Cantaloupe Custard.

1-2 cantaloupe
3-4 cup sugar
2 eggs
Pinch of salt
3 tablespoons flour
1-4 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter.
Mash cantaloupe fine. Add the beaten eggs, mix the flour and sugar together then add it to the HICKORY NUT CAKE—Two cups sugar, 1 cup milk, 2-3 cup butter, 3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup nuts, 6 eggs. Rub sugar, butter and yolks of eggs together. Add flour with baking powder.

Editor's Note: Fort Sumter withstood attack for the fourth time in the summer of 1864. Great hundred pound shells from the enemy cannon beat against the crumbling walls. With the exact aim of desperate Confederates knocked fifty-one of the enemy cannon into fragments. A unique, easy-to-fix luncheon or supper dish, that may be prepared hours in advance and then popped into the oven, is suggested by Mrs. G. Glasier, 875 Ponce de Leon, N. E., Atlanta. It is a pretty dish and should be something new and attractive for individual servings.

Baked Cream Chicken a la Cantaloupe.

Prepare, in your favorite way, creamed chicken, or chicken with mushrooms, Spanish sauce. Have sauce rather thick. When cold, fill cleaned cantaloupe halves and sprinkle top lightly with fine bread crumbs or mild grated cheese. Bake in hot oven 10 to 15 minutes to heat through and brown crumbs.

If top edge of melon is cut in scallops or peaks, it makes an even prettier dish. Of course, if you prefer, anything else may be substituted for the chicken.

Entered in the cantaloupe contest is this fine recipe for peach and cantaloupe conserve sent by Mrs. F. C. Prow, 2426 Boulevard drive, N. E., Atlanta. You will want to store jars of it away for winter, it is so good.

Peach and Cantaloupe Conserve.
1 pint diced peaches
1 pint diced cantaloupe
3 cups sugar
2 lemons, juice and the grated rind.
Combine ingredients and cook until mixture is thick and clear; stir often to prevent burning. Pour into clean jars and seal immediately.

TRIAL INTERRUPTED BY WIFE'S SHOUTS

jury by a reference to it in Aycock's version.

Under Georgia law, Mrs. Aycock cannot testify in a case involving her husband.

Aycock testified he visited Mrs. Sikes the night of the slaying, May 12, and left, returning later and receiving no response to his knocks. He declared he had friends to call police to break into her apartment. She was dead of a pistol wound.

Aycock reiterated his innocence of the slaying but admitted his relations with Mrs. Sikes were wrong. The state presented witnesses in an effort to show Mrs. Aycock could not have fired the fatal shot on grounds she was several miles away that night.

Assistant Solicitor Ryan had hardly spoken "he (Aycock) killed her" when Mrs. Aycock jumped to her feet in the crowded superior courtroom. Judge John Rourke rapped for order as she was removed from the room. Clifford J. Purdy, deputy sheriff, and James Murphy, court bailiff, took her to the solicitor general's office, where Mrs. Mary Thomas,

A moment earlier Ryan had accused James N. Rahal, defense counsel, of "going out and cooking up a case of murder, not of justifiable homicide, but of murder, and big Bill Aycock, who can't take it without a gun, has been asking his wife to 'spread wide your skirts so I can hide behind them.'"

DOHERTY ASSAILS LEGION CRITICISM

Characterizes Attack as "Puny Product of Small Mind."

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—Daniel Doherty, national commander of the American Legion, today described criticisms of the Legion by Professor William Gellermann as "the puny product of a small mind."

speaking at the closing representative assembly of the National Education Association convention, denied he had been "gagged" at last night's meeting of the teachers in Madison Square Garden, and said the Legion wished to continue its harmonious relations with the NEA.

"When this abortive attempt to sabotage the American Legion became public," he said, "I asked the Legion national headquarters to arrange with your convention that I might be allowed to address the convention on the subject."

"At no time did I or the Legion suggest any time or place, and when it was thought better that I be heard here this morning instead of last night at Madison Square Garden, I was in thorough accord with that decision."

GRAND JURY CLEARS MRS. MYRTLE GUYOL

ments and recommendations of the jury, meeting for the last time, will be read in court this afternoon. A new jury will be sworn in Tuesday.

Head, arriving from Barnesville yesterday, was summoned by Turner and was the last witness called by the grand jury as it prepared to close its investigation.

He had sworn an affidavit on April 1 that a motorist stopped in Barnesville a few months after the Goyl slaying here, April 23, 1935. In his affidavit, Head swore that the motorist bought him a bottle of beer, after he had asked the motorist if he were Cutcliffe.

Two women, one of whom the motorist said was his wife, waited in the automobile while they drank beer, and it was then that the man who said he was Cutcliffe told him Mrs. Goyl murdered her husband, Head said. He said he testified to that effect before the grand jury.

Solicitor Boykin came from the jury room and told Head to "look around the witness room and see if you can find the man you talked to."

After asking Forrester to remove a hat he was wearing Head said, "That's the man."

"You're Cutcliffe, aren't you?" Head asked.

"I might be," answered Forrester.

"Yes, you're the man who bought me a bottle of beer and told me you were returning from a fishing trip in Florida. You also told me Mrs. Goyl killed her husband when I asked you what you thought of the case," Head said.

"You're Another."

Cutcliffe, who sat silently beside Forrester, then arose. "I'm Cutcliffe, and you've just told a lie," he said. The Barnesville officer answered, "you're another one" and the scramble followed.

Mrs. Goyl seized the policeman's hair and was pushed aside as other witnesses jerked Head back.

Cutcliffe made a lunge at Head. As the Barnesville officer was led from the witness room, Solicitor Boykin called in a deputy sheriff and two others who had witnessed the identification of Forrester as Cutcliffe.

Then Cutcliffe and Forrester, both of whom are heavy set, went before the jury. As Cutcliffe, who was not summoned to appear before the grand jury, entered the witness room struggle, he was wearing the hat Forrester had on when Head was asked to identify Cutcliffe. After the scuffle, Forrester returned the hat to Cutcliffe. Cutcliffe was said to have given the hat to Forrester in the solicitor general's office before he went to the witness room. Head was testifying before the grand jury at the time.

After Head had left the witness room, Cutcliffe remarked, "I'll settle with these — when this is all over."

Turner, charging Cutcliffe with attempting intimidation, insisted that Boykin let him into the jury room.

"That is the type of intimidation I have faced in this investigation since Fluker was convicted two years ago," Turner said.

Initial Skirmish.

"This is just the initial skirmish in my fight to prove Fluker's innocence," he said. "This investigation will show the public the kind of methods used in the conviction of Fluker. We have had to fight politics, money and intimidation in our investigation of the case."

The grand jury during the day heard several conflicting pieces of testimony regarding the identification of Fluker as the man who shot Goyl as he sat with his wife in the driveway alongside their home on Pelham road three years ago.

Mrs. Goyl, who was never called to testify by the grand jury, testified during the Fluker trial she identified Fluker in a police lineup after his arrest.

Affidavits Differ.

The grand jury had an affidavit from Police Captain B. W. Seabrook, of the identification bureau, that she did not and one from Lieutenant McCrary stating she did.

Testimony that a state's witness, Mike Collins, had failed to identify Fluker recently at Fulton tower also was before the jury. Collins, former member of the police department, testified he saw Fluker in town the day of the murder of Goyl. He said in his testimony he saw Fluker driving a black coupe with a pistol on the seat beside him.

USE OF 'HUSH ACT' HIT IN PARLIAMENT

Army Accused of Using Measure to Cover Up Defense Deficiencies.

LONDON, June 30.—(AP)—Member after member of England's ancient "mother of parliaments" rose in heated debate today to defend age-old privileges in a clash with the army over the scope of the dread official secrets act.

Under a barrage of words directed against it as well as the government, the army was put to rout, at least temporarily.

The tenor of most of the speeches was reflected in a fighting address by Winston Churchill, veteran of several former cabinets, who charged the government and the army with using the official secrets act to cover up deficiencies in the national defense.

Members of the house of commons demanded respect for high parliamentary rights after the house privileges committee, headed by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain himself, mildly had rebuked an army court of inquiry.

The committee decided the court had usurped commons' privileges by summoning Duncan Sandys, young M. P. and son-in-law of Churchill, to find out how he obtained secret anti-aircraft data, which he charged was unfavorable to the government, at a time when the house itself was probing the broader aspects of the matter.

The army, having cancelled its calling of Sandys, awaited action by a select committee to inquire into whether members of commons are liable under the official secrets act, with which Sandys said he was threatened if he declined to name the source of his information.

Churchill, in a scathing attack, indirectly accused War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha of hiding Britain's defense deficiencies behind the secrets act.

"The official secrets acts," he said, "was devised to protect the national defense and ought not to be used to shield ministers who may have neglected the national defense."

"It ought not to be used to shield ministers who have a strong personal interest in concealing the truth from the country."

Hore-Belisha disclosed that Chamberlain himself had told him to lay Sandys' information before the attorney general.

Clement Attlee, Laborite leader, opened the opposition attack.

"There could be no greater blow to democracy," he said, "than the admission of any right of an executive to hamper or hinder or restrain members of parliament from carrying out their duties to the nation."

"We cannot be too careful to guard our country from those pernicious doctrines of totalitarian states where liberty has been suppressed."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, said "parliament must remain su-

That All American "Tender Made" Smile

..it will make thousands of faces beam about noon on the 4th of JULY!

The Fourth of July is a natural feast day. Make it a real American "Tender Made" Ham Day in your home this year. Plan now to serve Wilson's "Tender Made"—the most widely imitated meat in America today.

Why be content with old-fashioned ham? Here is ham produced by new and improved methods of curing, smoking and processing—a ham as far beyond the old style as your modern range is beyond the old wood stove. Enjoy the products of today.

And remember, any home can enjoy Wilson's "Tender Made" Ham. It costs no more and often less than ordinary ham—because you lose practically nothing through oven shrinkage.

GEORGIA, FLORIDA REDUCE LICENSES ON FISH DEALERS

Rivers Negotiates Agreement Slashing in Half $500 Out-of-State Fees.

Georgia and Florida yesterday entered a reciprocal agreement to slash in half their $500 licenses on out-of-state fish dealers covering the current year.

Florida officials came here seeking reciprocity and the agreement was reached after a three-hour conference. In the form of executive orders writing off half the license fee for this year, the pact must be submitted to the next legislature for confirmation or rejection.

Governor Rivers offered the reduction on recommendation of Columbus Roberts, commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, under whom the Georgia law is administered.

It was agreed that about 50 shrimp boats seized by special agents at Savannah on charges of non-payment of the license, would be released from claim by payment of $200 licenses provided they did not engage in fish business in this state any more this year.

Boats Free Under Bond.

Any of these boats, however, continuing to engage in the business in Georgia, would be required to pay half the regular fee, or $250. All the boats are free now under bond, officials said.

John Kennedy, of Savannah, and Herbert Ringel, of Brunswick, representing the boat men involved in the seizure, said they would submit the proposal to their clients.

LeRoy Hendricks, special agent of the Department of Agriculture, under whom the boats were tied up, said Georgia fishermen were "justified in the howl and cry they are making to Governor Rivers for protection" under the non-resident license law.

Commissioner R. L. Dowling, of the Florida Department of Natural Resources, said Florida would accept the pact. Under his state's law, he is empowered to issue the order suspending payment of half the license. Governor Rivers must draw it for Georgia.

Other Floridians Present.

With Dowling at the conference were Assistant Attorney General Lawrence A. Truett; L. C. Yeomans, Crystal River fish dealer, and two shrimp boat operators, A. H. Ramos and Felix Salvador, of St. Augustine.

Governor Rivers was assisted in the conference by Commissioner Roberts, Chief Food Inspector T. F. Purvis, who administers the law, Assistant Attorney General O. H. Dukes and Hendricks.

The Georgia license law, Roberts explained, was enacted as a refrigeration and sanitation measure, enforced by agents of his department.

Dowling said Florida's similar law never had been enforced and appealed for reciprocity "for our mutual interests."

FRECKLE CHAMP WINS WITH 2,165

Pennsylvania Boy Places

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 30.—(AP)—Eleven-year-old Paul Brown, of Harrisburg, Pa., was declared today "undisputed freckle champion of the United States for 1938."

He won the title in Atlantic City's third annual freckle contest, with 2,165 freckles to his credit. As a reward he received a gold medal, a big box of salt-water taffy and a long ride through town on a fire truck.

Marie Malone, 10, of Washington, D. C., won second place with 2,050 freckles. Third place went to Marie K. Fletcher, 10, of Shannon, Pa., who had 2,010.

Atlanta Owns Autographed Dickens Print

Mrs. J. M. Bonnell Was
an Aunt.

An autographed picture of Charles Dickens, the English author of "David Copperfield" and "A Tale of Two Cities," is owned by an Atlanta woman, Mrs. J. M. Bonnell, of Cook road.

The picture, a steel engraving, has been in her possession 20 years. It was given her by her aunt, Flora McDonald, a direct descendant of the Flora McDonald for whom a college at the University of North Carolina is named.

How it came into her aunt's possession is somewhat of a mystery to Mrs. Bonnell. All she knows is that Dickens presented the gift on his last visit to the United States to see Longfellow.

She reasons, however, that there must have been some connection between the presentation and the fact her aunt was a descendant of the North Carolina Flora McDonald, who was of Scottish descent.

Mrs. Bonnell first developed a desire for the picture more than 20 years ago when, as a girl, she visited her grandmother's plantation at Sumter, Ga. Her grandmother's name also was Flora McDonald.

She recalled that she spent many happy hours rummaging through the "plunder room" of the colonial mansion, and there, among the spoils beds and chests that always fascinated her, she found the dusty picture.

"I wanted it from the moment I laid my eyes on it," she said yesterday. "About that time I was reading 'A Tale of Two Cities.' I asked my aunt if I could have it, and she told me I could. She was 82 years old then, and she never told me anything about the history of the picture."

The mysterious angle does not worry Mrs. Bonnell, however. She is proud of her picture and takes great pains to see that it is well preserved. The signature of Dickens still appears to be as legible as the day it was written.

PARTNERS IN CRIME TO DIE IN CHAIR TODAY

RALEIGH, N. C., June 30.—(AP) Bill Payne and Wash Turner, partners in crime for the last 10 years, went to the gallows today on the eve of their execution for the slaying of George Penn, a North Carolina highway patrolman.

Barring a last-minute change in plans, either Payne or Turner will be executed in the gas chamber about 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. About 30 minutes will elapse while the gas chamber is cleared of fumes, then the other partner will enter and the process of legal death will be repeated.

PENNSYLVANIA COURT RULES WORK LAW VOID

PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—(AP) Pennsylvania's new law limiting male workers to a maximum work week of 44 hours was declared unconstitutional today by the state supreme court.

The court affirmed the decision of the Dauphin county (Harrisburg) court which some months ago held invalid the act, passed by the 1937 legislature, and granted a permanent injunction staying its enforcement. The law never went into effect.

Mrs. J. M. Bonnell, of Cook road, studies her autographed picture of Charles Dickens, English author of "David Copperfield" and "A Tale of Two Cities." The picture has been in her possession for 20 years. It was formerly owned by an aunt, Flora McDonald, who lived in Sumter, Ga.

FOUGHT IN BATTLE

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 30.—(AP)—Sixteen of the old soldiers registered today for the reunion of the Blue and Gray came back to the fields on which they fought in the great battle that turned the tide of the War Between the States.

Eleven were in the Union army and five fought for the Confederacy. They included:

Grand Army of the Republic—Robert C. Blair, Los Angeles, Cal.; Albert G. Fuller, Ready, Mich.; John Salsburg, Glenfield, N. Y.; Charles Sherbondy, Akron, Ohio; William B. Schmuckes, Miami, Okla.; Lucian B. Warren, Spring Valley, Minn.; William W. Sickles, Orling, Wash., and George Chapman, Watertown, S. D.

United Confederate Veterans—E. J. Hillard, Frostproof, Fla.; O. R. Gellente, Bossier, La.; W. H. L. Wells, Plano, Texas; the Rev. William J. Cooke, Huntington, W. Va., and Josiah Henderson, Macon, Georgia.

The opening day of the anniversary week encampment found the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy flown before the tents of the men from the south.

The flag was raised in preparation for the arrival of General John M. Claypool, of St. Louis, Mo., commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

He had demanded that the Confederates be permitted to fly their colors.

The Stars and Bars also was flown at the entrance to the tent of Mrs. Helen Dortch Longstreet, widow of General James Longstreet, who participated in the battle.

The veteran was stricken en route to Gettysburg, and was taken to the hospital here Wednesday. Physicians said he needed rest and quiet.

A Show for Every Movie Palate Offered in Week's Theater Billing

Fox Opens With "Gold Diggers in Paris"; Grand Shows "Lord Jeff"; Paramount, "White Banners"; Rialto, "Man's Castle"; Capitol, "The Kid Comes Back."

By LEE ROGERS,
Motion Picture Editor.

Variety greets the moviegoer today. And it's a case of "you pick your choice and you pay your money."

The Fox is opening a musical, "Gold Diggers in Paris," which brings Rudy Vallee, one of radio's greatest showmen, back to the screen after an absence of several years.

Loew's Grand is offering "Lord Jeff," with juvenile stars, Freddie Bartholomew and Mickey Rooney, in a story of the sea. "White Banners," the Lloyd C. Douglas story, is featured at the Paramount. Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville have the leads.

Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young will thrill again in the love story, "Man's Castle," opening today at the Rialto.

"The Kid Comes Back," with Wayne Morris, will come to the Capitol Sunday with a new stage show.

At the Fox tomorrow night, Loretta Young and Joel McCrae will be seen in "Three Blind Mice" at the midnight performance which begins at 11:30 o'clock. Marjorie Weaver also has a role in the play.

"WHITE BANNERS"
COMES TO PARAMOUNT

Manager Tommy Reed, of the Paramount, is opening "White Banners," a picture which carries as its guarantee of engrossing interest and solid entertainment the tag—"from the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas."

In the cast are Jackie Cooper, Fay Bainter, Claude Rains, Bonita Granville, and others.

"This unusual story," Reed says, "is the third in a series of novels by the retired minister. The others were 'Magnificent Obsession' and 'The Green Light.' In this newest picture, 'White Banners,' Pauline, the toll-worn peddler, is the principal character. She comes to the household of Paul Ward, a small-town school teacher, and devotes herself to helping the family."

"Necessarily a condensed story of the picture deals mainly with the period in which Paul Ward invents an iceless icebox and then reaches its climax in the discovery by Hannah that the adopted son of the town banker is her own child. What she does thereafter movingly illustrates the author's contention in behalf of the nobility of the human spirit."

Fay Bainter plays the role of Hannah and Paul Ward is portrayed by Claude Rains.

RIALTO BILLS
"MAN'S CASTLE"

Manager W. T. Murray, of the Rialto, describes his new picture as "a return of one of the most beautiful love stories ever told on the screen. It is 'Man's Castle,' starring Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young.

"In addition to the two stars, the cast includes Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Arthur Hohl, Marjorie Rameau and Dickie Moore.

"Frank Borzage directed the making of the film, achieving one of the greatest triumphs in a career studied with triumph. It is

HARLAN DEFENDANT DENIES 'FRAMING'

Sharing the romantic interest with Rudy Vallee, is Rosemary Lane. The comedians are headed by "Wu Wu" Herbert, Allen Jenkins and Mable Todd. Finally, there is the large chorus of beauties selected and trained by Busby Berkeley.

The story revolves about a silly mistake which made Hugh Herbert's type could make—and he's the one who makes it, when, as a representative of the Paris International Exposition sent to engage America's foremost ballet troupe to take part in a contest at the exposition, he gets in the Club Ball in New York, a very hotcha night club, and engages the equally hotcha night club chorus to represent America.

The government closed its case two weeks ago with the testimony of a young miner and a boy from Ages, Ky., that they had been asked to make false statements concerning events the day in February, 1937, that the son of a United Mine Workers of America organizer was slain.

Middleton and Lee Hubbard, another former deputy now on trial, were arrested on charges of attempting to frame testimony and released on bond pending grand jury action.

Middleton was preceded on the stand by Bryan W. Whifield Jr., vice president of the defendant Harlan Collieries Company and a defendant personally.

Whifield said he had distrusted the union since 1931, when three deputy sheriffs were killed in the celebrated "Battle of Everts," for which union men were imprisoned. The same year, he said, his life was threatened.

Middleton denied he ever had participated in acts of violence against union men or interfered with union meetings.

To Have a Good Time on Fourth,
Don't Do These:

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, yesterday outlined a series of suggestions on what to do and what not to do in order to fully enjoy the Independence Day holiday.

Here are a few of his opinions on how to remain healthy and happy though vacationing:

1. Don't wear heavy clothing, but as little as commensurate with decency.

2. Don't get too much sun; a "chocolate" suntan cannot be acquired in a couple of days.

3. Don't be careless of the food eaten during the summer, and particularly while traveling.

4. Don't leave eyes unprotected wear sun glasses, or stay in the shade.

5. Don't forget to avoid mosquitoes, flies and wood ticks, especially in strange parts of the country.

6. Don't forget to drink salt water or take salt tablets in extremely hot weather; when the body perspires, salts are given off which must be replaced; heat prostration can result if salt is not replaced.

Dr. Kennedy also warned against drinking water from sources which may contain bacteria.

As he issued his warnings, the National Safety Council urged care in driving, swimming, boating and other holiday activities.

McGEEHEE RESIGNS AS FHA AIDE HERE

Deputy Administrator Has Accepted Position With Coca-Cola Company.

Charles C. McGeehee, of Atlanta, has resigned as deputy administrator of the Federal Housing Administration to accept a position with the Coca-Cola Company, according to an announcement made yesterday at Washington by Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator. The resignation is effective the middle of this month.

The administrator announced further that Jay Keegan, of San Francisco, has been appointed as successor to McGeehee, who has served in that position since January, 1937, when he was promoted from deputy regional director in this city, after serving with the housing administration for about two years.

Prior to his connection with the FHA, McGeehee had served as an executive of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, in which he was first a special representative in the review division and then assistant regional manager in the southeast, with headquarters here.

He is a native of Atlanta and was engaged in the real estate and insurance business before becoming associated with government agencies. His wife is the former Mary Louise Brumby, of Marietta.

MISSING GEORGIANS HUNTED BY POLICE

Young Husband Disappears
From Villa Rica; Girl
From Waycross.

Authorities in widely separated sections yesterday were enlisted in searches for two missing Georgians—a job-hunting husband whose 20-year-old wife has been seriously ill since he vanished about 10 days ago, and a 15-year-old schoolgirl.

The missing are Chesley Walker, 21, of Villa Rica, and Esther Swindle, of Waycross.

An atmosphere of mystery in Walker's disappearance was deepened June 20 when relatives in Villa Rica received from Memphis a suitcase containing his clothing. The following day, a postcard was received from Walker in Memphis, stating he had been promised a job on a bridge gang at Jacksonville, Fla., about August 1, but making no mention of the suitcase.

Walker left his home at Villa Rica about three weeks ago, after a week of unemployment, and hitch-hiked to the Tennessee city, relatives said. He had previously been employed on a timber gang.

His father, J. M. Walker, described him as follows: Black hair and brown eyes; thick lips;

'Possum Is Treed On Vidalia Street

VIDALIA, Ga., June 30.—The 'possum hunting season is open here.

John Wiggins, local newspaperman, treed the first 'possum of the new season on Durden street, principal residence section of the city. He said the 'possum crossed the street ahead of him and was treed in a persimmon bush near the home of Dr. C. W. Findley.

After that it was easy.

140 pounds and 5 feet 9 inches tall.

Mrs. Irene Swindle, mother of the Waycross girl, said her daughter disappeared from their home the afternoon of June 13, after helping prepare the noon meal and washing the dishes. She was last seen, her mother said, as she (Mrs. Swindle) left for a trip to town.

Mrs. Swindle said her daughter has red bobbed hair and blue eyes, is about 5 feet 6 inches tall, and weighs about 117 pounds. She could give no explanation of the girl's disappearance.

CIVIC CLUB ELECTS.

MILLEN, Ga., June 30.—Walter Harrison today was elected president of the Millen Civic Club, succeeding Milton Carlton. He was chosen by a nominating committee composed of D. W. Johnson, Ben A. Neal and Wilmer Durden.

F. D. R. REITERATES NEIGHBOR POLICY

Admonishes This Country to Keep Bright Fires of Freedom, Liberty.

Interest in the problems which, with such force, strike the whole world in the face today."

Here Mr. Roosevelt deviated from his text to remark lightly that some who are not strong on spelling will get that (pedagogue) mixed up with demagogue."

Mrs. Roosevelt, a one-time teacher who is still vice principal of the Toddhunter school, introduced her husband as speaker for the first time in her life.

Her words were brief—"We are late today. Ladies and gentlemen, it gives me great pleasure to introduce the President of the United States."

The President, hatless, traveled under a cloudless blue sky and blazing sun from his mother's home at Hyde Park to the fair grounds where he was given a 21-gun salute.

LaGuardia Greets F. D. R. He was in jovial mood and greeted Mayor LaGuardia, who met his motorcade at the New York city boundary, "How's the boy?"

At the cornerstone-laying, Mr. Roosevelt stood under a star-spangled canopy near the flags of many nations. Twenty-five yards away, two giant cranes went on lifting steel girders.

The President said the good neighbor policy "has proven so successful in the western hemisphere that the American republics believe that it could succeed in the rest of the world if the spirit which lies behind it were better understood and more actively striven for in the other parts of the world."

The chief executive noted that "We in this hemisphere are happily removed, in large measure, from fear and from the controversies which breed it."

Against War. "In a larger sense, however," he added, "we cannot remain unconcerned, especially because it is our fortune to enjoy friendship and good relations with all nations."

With that in view, Mr. Roosevelt urged extension of the western hemisphere spirit to the rest of the world.

"The policy of the good neighbor," he declared, "is, as we know it, not limited to those problems of international relations which may result in war."

"We are against war and have agreed among ourselves quietly to discuss difficulties in such a way that the possibility of war has become remote. But the policy involves also matters of trade and matters affecting the interchange of culture."

The President said the New York World's Fair and the San Francisco fair were "well-timed" for 1939, adding:

"They will encourage that interchange of thought, of culture, and of trade which are so vital today. . . . It has been well said that you cannot hate a man you know."

"Therefore, this exposition will stand as a symbol of world peace for, without doubt, it is a useful advance of the patient road to peace."

Before returning to Hyde Park, the President visited Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf, of Sweden, who is ill in Medical Center.

CINDERS REMOVED FROM F. D. R.'S EYES

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today to have some cinders taken out of his eyes on his automobile ride from Hyde Park to New York.

While he stopped to wait for a freight train to roll down the tracks at a grade crossing, a billow of cinder-laden smoke wafted across his eyes.

A medical aide applied eye wash.

JIMMY INDIGNANT AT MAGAZINE ARTICLE

ROCHESTER, Minn., June 30.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the President, was reported in an "unchanged condition" at St. Mary's hospital here today. He is undergoing medical treatment for a small gastric ulcer. Physicians said his general condition is excellent.

Hospital attendants said young Roosevelt is "not seeing anyone" except his wife who came here Monday.

Earlier today, a statement was issued in Roosevelt's behalf saying he was "indignant over certain outright misrepresentations" in an article in the current Saturday Evening Post, which said he is making between $250,000 and $2,000,000 annually selling insurance. The statement added Roosevelt had asked an attorney to consider the matter for "future conference."

Value of Milk Emphasized in Big Parade

A colorful parade of more than 100 floats and vehicles climaxed Atlanta's observance of National Milk Month yesterday. A part of the procession which wound its way through the downtown district is shown here. All of the floats emphasized the nutritive value of milk. Twenty-eight dairies and seven chain stores were represented.

Milk Month Is Climaxed by Parade Inspected by Throngs on Streets

More Than 100 Floats and Decorated Vehicles Participate in Celebration March Through Downtown Atlanta to the State Capitol.

Hundreds of Atlantans became more milk-conscious yesterday as they lined downtown sidewalks to watch a parade climaxed the city's observance of National Milk Month.

More than 100 floats and gaily decorated vehicles wound their way through the downtown district to the state capitol. Twenty-eight dairies and seven chain stores were represented.

A police escort and band headed the parade. Riding in the official automobile were Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers; Mayor Pro Tem Robert Carpenter, and other officials.

Cows Enjoy Publicity. Then followed the floats, all emphasizing the nutritive value of milk. There were milkmaids, dressed in their snow-white uniforms and perky bonnets, their milk pails dangling by their sides. Behind them came a herd of thoroughbred milch cows, apparently enjoying the publicity as they rode along in their decorated "stalls."

F. D. R. QUALIFIED TO LAY STONE

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today at the laying of the World Fair federal building cornerstone that he was qualified by trade to officiate at such functions.

After travelling up some mortar around the stone, the President said:

"The Master Mason certified to me that the cornerstone was well and truly laid, and in return I told him I hold a union card."

Mr. Roosevelt did not say whether the card was honorary, and an inquiry at the union offices failed to disclose where it was issued.

SPEECH SCHEDULED BY HUGH HOWELL

Gubernatorial Candidate To Talk at Warrenton Meeting Monday.

Hugh Howell, Atlanta attorney and one of Governor Rivers' three opponents for re-election, announced yesterday that he would address a meeting of his supporters at Warrenton July 4, the speech being Warren county's chief observance of the holiday.

Howell's backers said yesterday they were expecting a big meeting.

The candidate's speech will be broadcast over station WSB beginning at 12 noon.

George Meeting.

Meanwhile, other candidates, with the exception of Governor Rivers, also planned a big day for the Fourth. Senator Walter F. George will open his campaign for re-election with a speech at Vienna. This speech will be followed by a free barbecue.

Other candidates for major offices will be heard at Dublin, where an all-day program has been planned under the direction of Laurens county political leaders.

Holiday Declared. Governor Rivers yesterday formally declared the day a holiday. He will attend a boxing show at Dublin during the day, but will make no speech.

Another political development of yesterday was the retirement of J. L. R. Boyd from the race for congress from the fifth district. Boyd's withdrawal leaves Representative Robert Ramspeck with only one opponent, C. L. Wood, of College Park.

Boyd said the campaign period did not offer enough time for him to present the program calling for fundamental changes he hoped to campaign on.

Four pretty girls sat around a table on one float, sipping fresh sweet milk through straws, with a waitress standing beside them. Then there was "Bossy," the mechanical cow, who responded to the directions of a grinning youngster who sat perched on a high float.

A somber note was added by a hearse carrying the germs which once threatened the purity of milk. It bore this sign: "Old Methods Are Out; All Germs Are Dead."

Another float carried a group of playing youngsters. A large sign said, "We drink one quart of milk every day." And there were many others.

The parade assembled at Baker and West Peachtree streets. It proceeded out West Peachtree to North avenue, back through Five Points on Peachtree street and on Whitehall and Hunter streets to the state capitol.

Milk Month, sponsored throughout the nation by the National Association of Chain Stores, officially ends July 8.

authority in the billion-dollar fleet expansion act to order battleships up to 45,000 tons if he considered them necessary for national defense.

Carrying out a continuous program to replace ships approaching the 26-year limit of maximum military usefulness, the navy intends to ask congress next year for funds to start one or two more battleships. Indications are they will be 45,000 tonners.

The tri-power agreement today was the result of a compromise between the United States and Great Britain, after nearly three months of discussions in London. The United States was represented by the counselor of embassy, Herschel V. Johnson, and the naval attaché, Captain Russell Wilson.

Great Britain had first suggested a limit of 42,000 tons, then came down to 40,000 tons, with 16-inch guns.

The United States, on the grounds that knowledge of Japan's naval program was too indefinite to fix a limit, came out first for no restriction at all on size and for 18-inch guns.

When the United States came down on the caliber of guns, Great Britain went up on the size of ships.

Duff Cooper announced Britain had signed an agreement with Germany today bringing the Reich into line with the new limitation, and that he hoped for a similar one with the Soviet Union.

the very beginning he could not and would not do the actual shooting, that one of them would have to do it.

Straws Suggested. "In the discussion," Gibson quoted Nelson, "Mary Kent suggested that she and Verna Mae would draw straws to see which one would shoot the child. Whereupon Mary Kent picked up two long matches . . . and broke them one shorter than the other and handed them to Verna Mae."

"Verna Mae took the two matches and concealed them in her hand with only the ends showing, and told Mary to draw one, and if she drew the long one she would kill the child. . . . Mary drew the short one and Verna Mae immediately loaded the pistol and made ready."

Gibson said Nelson cried during his statement and several times exclaimed, "How could I kill my own child—but I did it."

F. D. R. Stresses Freedom of Thought to N. E. A.; Urges Foreigners To Visit America During Fair

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's address to the National Education Association follows:

If you have followed the arguments of financial experts over the last few years, you have guessed that they have as many theories of keeping books as there are ends to serve. They do not always agree on the definition of capital, and they even disagree in what is an asset and what is a liability. That is true both in private business and in government.

But whatever differences bookkeepers and financiers may have over the rules of their professions, no man or woman of common sense can forget or allow government to forget, what are the true and ultimate assets and liabilities of a nation.

The only real capital of a nation is its natural resources and its human beings. So long as we take care of and make the most of both of them, we shall survive as a strong nation, a successful nation and a progressive nation—whether or not the bookkeepers say other kinds of budgets are from time to time out of balance.

This capital structure—natural resources and human beings—has to be maintained at all times. The plant has to be kept up and new capital put in year by year to meet increasing needs. If we skimp on capital, if we exhaust our natural resources and weaken the capacity of our human beings, then we shall go the way of all weak nations.

Before we can think straight as a nation we have to consider in addition to the old kind—a new kind of government balance sheet—a long-range sheet which shows survival values for our population and for our democratic way of living, balanced against what we have paid for them. Judged by that test—history's test—I venture to say that the long-range budget of the present administration of our government has been in the black and not in the red.

For many years I, like you, have been a pedagogue, striving to inculcate in the youth of America a greater knowledge of and interest in the problems which, with such force, strike the whole world in the face today. In these recent years we have taught the prudent husbandry of our national estate—our rivers, our soil, our forests, our phosphates, our oils, our minerals and our wild life. Along these lines we have made mighty strides—some further than in all the years before in knowledge of how to grapple with the problems of maintaining the estate that our forefathers handed down to us.

With the dissemination of this knowledge, we have taken action. Few men begrudge what that action has cost, because it has been based on operations physically large and spectacular, dramatic and easy to see. I am thankful that I live in an age of building, for it is far easier to dramatize to one's self the importance of the object if you see it while it is going up, than if you come along later and see it only in its completed stage. We are fortunate today in seeing the New York World's Fair of 1939 in the construction stage. This glimpse will make it mean more to us when we see it completed next year.

PRECIOUS RESOURCES OF ABILITY

The other half of the preservation of our national capital is likewise a problem of husbandry—the conserving of health, energy, skill and morale of our population, and especially of that part of our population which will be the America of tomorrow.

This also is a problem of the fullest use and development of precious resources of ability which cannot be stored and will be lost if they remain unused. No nation can afford to neglect the young unless its people, individually and collectively, grow in ability to understand and handle the new knowledge as applied to increasingly intricate human relationships. That is why the teachers of America are the ultimate guardians of the human capital of America, the assets which must be made to pay social dividends if democracy is to survive.

We have believed wholeheartedly in investing the money of the people on the education of the young. That conviction, backed up by taxes and dollars, is no accident, for it is the logical application of our faith in democracy.

Man's present day control of the affairs of nations is the direct result of investment in education. And the democratization of education has made it possible for outstanding ability, which would otherwise be completely lost, to make its outstanding contribution to the common weal. We cannot afford to overlook any source of human raw material. Genius flowers in most unexpected places. "It is the impetus of the undistinguished host that hurls forth a Diomed or a Hector."

No government can create the human touch and self-sacrifice which the individual teacher gives to the process of education. But what government can do is to provide financial support and to protect from interference the freedom to learn.

No one wants the federal government to subsidize education any more than is absolutely necessary. It has been and will be the traditional policy of the United States to leave the actual management of schools and their curricula to state and local control.

But we know that in many places local government unfortunately cannot adequately finance either the freedom or the facilities to learn. And there the federal government can properly supplement local resources.

Here is where the whole problem of education ties in definitely with natural resources and the economic picture of the individual community or state. We all know that the best schools are in most cases located in those communities which can afford to spend the most money on them—the most money for adequate teachers' salaries, for modern buildings and for modern equipment of all kinds. We know that the western educational link in the system lies in those communities which have the lowest taxable values, therefore the smallest per capita tax receipts, and, therefore, the lowest teachers' salaries and most inadequate buildings and equipment. We do not blame these latter communities. They want better educational facilities, but simply have not enough money to pay the cost.

There is probably a wider divergence today in the standard of education between the richest communities and the poorest communities than there was 100 years ago; and it is, therefore, our immediate task to seek to close that gap—not in any way by decreasing the facilities of the richer communities but by extending aid to those less fortunate. We all know that if we do not close this gap it will continue to widen, for the best brains in the poor communities will either have no chance to develop or will migrate to those places where their ability will stand a better chance.

POOREST COMMUNITIES ON ERODED LAND

To continue the parallel between natural and human resources, it is well to remember that our poorest communities exist where the land is most greatly eroded, where farming does not pay, where industries have moved out, where flood and drought have done their work, where transportation facilities are of the poorest and where cheap electricity is unavailable for the home.

All of this leads me to ask you not to demand that the federal government provide financial assistance to all communities. Our aid for many reasons, financial and otherwise, must be confined to lifting the level at the bottom rather than to giving assistance at the top. Today we cannot do both, and we must, therefore, reexamine ourselves to the greater need.

In line with this policy, the federal government during the past five years has given relatively far more assistance to the poorer communities than to the rich. We have done it through direct relief and through work relief, through the Resettlement Administration and the Farm Security Administration, the National Youth Administration, and through the rehabilitation of flooded, stranded or dust-blown areas. We have provided school houses, colleges, libraries, educational equipment and sanitation in every state of the Union. I include "sanitation" because it has always seemed to me that good health and good education must go hand in hand. We have placed many millions of dollars in the field of adult education through the Works Progress Administration, and, here again, most of the money has been expended in the poorer communities of the land.

I have spoken of the twin interlocking assets of national and human resources and of the need of developing them hand in hand. But with this goes the equally important and equally difficult problem of keeping education intellectually free. For freedom to learn is the first necessity of guaranteeing that man himself shall be self-reliant enough to be free.

Such things did not need as much emphasis a generation ago; but when the clock of civilization can be turned back by burning libraries, by exiling scientists, artists, musicians, writers and teachers, by dispersing universities, and by censoring news and literature and art, an added burden is placed upon those countries where the torch of free thought and free learning still burns bright.

If the fires of freedom and civil liberties burn low in other lands, they must be made brighter in our own.

If in other lands the press is censored we must redouble our efforts here to keep it free.

If in other lands the eternal truths of the past are threatened by intolerance we must provide a safe place here for their perpetuation.

There may be times when men and women in the turmoil of change lose touch with the civilized gains of centuries of education. But the gains of education are never really lost. Books may be burned and cities sacked, but truth, like the yearning for freedom, lives in the hearts of humble men and women. The ultimate victory of tomorrow is with democracy, and through democracy with education, for no people can be kept eternally ignorant or eternally enslaved.

Text or Speech At Fair Exercises.

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's speech at the laying of the World Fair federal building cornerstone follows:

On this occasion we formally commence the construction of the building of the government of the United States. I gladly express the appreciation of that government to the representatives of so many other nations who have graciously decided to take part in the New York World's Fair of 1939.

Already the plans for their participation are drawn and to them I want to stress my hope that many of their countrymen will visit the fair next year. To them also a hearty welcome will be given. I emphasize this on the ground of reciprocity, because for many years the visiting business has been somewhat uneven. Far more Americans have been traveling to the shores of other continents, especially Europe, than visitors from the other nations to our shores. I encourage all of my compatriots to learn all they can at first hand about other nations and to make friends there, but I wish that more of the citizens of other nations could visit us and make friends here.

All of us realize, of course, that the affairs of many parts of the world are, to put it politely, somewhat distraught. Such a condition necessarily accompanies wars and rumors of wars.

We in this hemisphere are happily removed, in large measure, both from fear and from the controversies which breed it. In a large sense, however, we cannot remain unconcerned, especially because it is our fortune to enjoy friendship and good relations with all nations.

You who represent the other nations here today have heard of what is known as the policy of the good neighbor. To that policy we have steadily adhered, and it may well be said that it is the definite policy of all the American republics with all nations.

It is a policy which can never be merely unilateral. In stressing it, the American republics appreciate, I am confident, that it is bilateral and multilateral and that the fair dealing which it implies must be reciprocated.

It is a policy which was not in its inception, or subsequently, limited to one hemisphere. It has proven so successful in the western hemisphere that the American republics believe that it would succeed in the rest of the world if the spirit which lies behind it were better understood and more actively striven for in the other parts of the world.

Furthermore, the policy of the good neighbor is, as we know, not limited to those problems of international relations which may result in war. We are against war and have agreed among ourselves quietly to discuss difficulties in such a way that the possibility of war has become remote. But the policy involves also matters of trade and matters affecting the interchange of culture.

In these modern days when so many new economic and social problems call for the revision of many old economic and social tenets, closer personal contacts are an essential to the well-being of nations.

That is why the New York World's Fair and the San Francisco Exposition are well-timed for 1939. They will encourage that interchange of thought, of culture, and of trade which are so vital today. They will give to the opposite ends of our country an opportunity to see the exhibits and visitors from the rest of the world—they will give to those visitors a splendid chance to see something of the length and breadth of the United States. All of us who are here today look forward to April, 1939, when this great exposition will be formally opened. It has been well said that you cannot hate a man you know. Therefore, this exposition will stand as a symbol of world peace for, without doubt, it is a useful advance on the patient road to peace.

CITY MAY REVOKE ASPHALT CONTRACT WITH SAM FINLEY

Council Will Study Plans Tuesday for Purchasing Plant.

Efforts to revoke the city's contract for asphalt with Sam E. Finley and to arrange for the purchase of an asphalt plant by the city will be made in council at its meeting Tuesday afternoon.

The public works committee yesterday voted to ask the purchasing committee to rescind its contract with Finley, because Chief of Construction Clarke Donaldson said street repairs are practically at a standstill through inability to get as much asphalt as needed, for the work.

"The city's contract with Finley went into effect a week ago," Donaldson said. "We had been using from 60 to 100 tons of asphalt a day in patching and repairing streets. Our workmen are now so delayed in getting loads of asphalt at the plant that we are getting only a few tons a day."

"Under this contract the city stands to lose between $8,000 and $15,000 on its asphalt purchases by the end of the year," he said. Councilman John A. White made a motion for the Finley contract to be revoked, while Alderman I. Glover Hailey and Alderman Robert Carpenter urged that the finance committee and budget commission set up money for the purchase of a city-owned asphalt plant.

"We have been trying to buy a plant for three years but every time some one has blocked our moves," Hailey said.

Donaldson said the purchasing committee had given the contract to Finley, although Finley's bid was the highest of several submitted. "The purchasing committee did not accept the lowest bid and he did not even consider the best bid," he said.

Can't Get Enough. Donaldson said the construction department had been buying asphalt on the open market 25 cents a ton cheaper than the contract price with Finley.

"This is the first time I can remember when the city could not get as much asphalt as it had money to pay for," Captain Rex LeFevre, engineer in charge of streets, said.

Funds for erection of a control tower at the municipal airport and for obtaining rights of way for the Magnolia street viaduct will be set up today by the budget commission and finance committee of city council.

A joint meeting of the two groups has been called for 2 o'clock this afternoon to make $27,000 available for the two projects.

Eleven thousand dollars are needed to augment $20,000 already set up for the air control tower, while $16,000 is the sum necessary to buy rights of way for the viaduct. The State Highway Department, with federal grant appropriation funds, will build the viaduct at a total cost of $115,000 if the city provides rights of way.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS PLEDGE F. D. R. AID

Georgia Executive Committee Votes Support of "Liberal" Program.

The Georgia Woman's Democratic Club, through its executive committee, pledged yesterday its support to President Roosevelt in his efforts to carry out the "liberal Democratic program."

The indorsement also recognized the President's right to intervene in party primaries "where liberal representation is at stake."

Mrs. Regina Benson, of Marietta, president of the state club, said the action was taken by unanimous vote at a meeting of the executive committee.

The telegram of indorsement sent to the White House read:

"We indorse 100 per cent your speech of Friday night, June 24. Your humanitarian program must go on. You can always depend upon the loyalty of the Georgia Woman's Democratic Club. We will never deny you, as leader of the Democratic party, the right to cast your influence in state primaries where liberal representation is at stake."

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR MILLARD HAYES

Funeral services for Millard Hayes, 72, blacksmith, who shot and killed himself Tuesday night at his home, 255 Connecticut avenue, N. E., were held yesterday afternoon at the residence, conducted by the Rev. Zack Hayes. Burial was in Decatur cemetery, under the direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

A blacksmith here for more than 50 years, Hayes had been employed by the city parks department since April. Members of the family blamed his death on despondency caused by the sharp decline in his trade. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide.

ROY W. HICKS BURIED; AUTO CRASH VICTIM

Funeral services for Roy Weyman Hicks, 30, of 965 Lucile avenue, S. W., who died Tuesday night of injuries received in an auto crash near McDonough, were held yesterday morning at Spring Hill, conducted by the Rev. C. C. Buckalew. Burial was in Prospect churchyard, Newton county. Daniel P. Shields, driver of the car, which left the highway and overturned, and Miss Inez Moody, of Memorial drive, a passenger, suffered minor injuries.

"SMALL BUSINESS" ORGANIZING

A definite feeling of uneasiness, of uncertainty, has developed among operators of small business enterprises throughout the land. Good management, it is felt, has suffered a serious setback because of valuable time consumed in smoothing over difficulties growing directly out of government interference. So many supervisory agencies are at work; so many complicated questionnaires, with heavy penalties for inaccuracies, to be answered; so many unnecessary labor disturbances to be adjusted; so many threats of future restraint, that more time and more thought are being given to meeting present and prospective demands of government than to the requirements of business.

In an attempt to ascertain why all this is necessary and whether it should be allowed to continue, the National Small Businessmen's Association has been organized and is now developing plans to culminate in a convention at Pittsburgh in September. The operator of the small business, it is contended, is somewhat in the category of the middle class or white collar worker. In possession of tremendous collective power, but impotent as an individual, it is proposed to develop this power for the future protection of his business interests. The inclination heretofore has been to sit back and let the other fellow do all the worrying.

Small business collectively, it is further contended, is the greatest single factor, economically and politically, in the United States. The purpose of the organization is to bring into practical use all of this latent influence for the best interests of the small businessman, which, to all intents and purposes, means the best interests of the nation as a whole.

Ten convention planks, representing opinion as expressed in hundreds of letters from the four corners of the country, follow: less government in business, less political experimentation; taxation for necessary revenue only; an independent congress; a balanced budget by reduction in expenditures; less encroachment upon free speech, press and radio; unhampered courts; sound money; government by and for the people—not for the benefit of federal employees and politicians; impartial enforcement of laws, regardless of political consequences and an immediate impartial senatorial investigation of all "alphabetical" agencies with particular reference to graft, waste and corruption.

It is by no means contended that these "ten planks" are permanent and cannot be amended. Nor that others cannot be added. They merely express the consensus of opinion of a rapidly increasing nation-wide membership. In the latest communication to members and prospective members the question is frankly asked: "Are we wrong in some of our objectives? If you think so, it is your duty to yourself and to us, to tell us so—to join your voice to that of others to bring our course into what you think to be the proper channel."

The small-businessman, it seems, is no longer to be ignored. Collectively, he does more business than all so-called big business combined. His enterprises represent more jobs and support more people. When he prospers, big business and the entire nation is prosperous. When his business lags the nation's business lags. If he can find a way out of his present difficulties, certainly no obstacle should be thrown in his path.

DO YOU KNOW GEORGIA?

Sponsors of the "all Georgia" exposition to be held here in October are aiming at a worthwhile goal—an exposition designed to sell Georgia to Georgians. The event is under sponsorship of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and will be the first of similar Georgia expositions to be held annually.

While proceeds of the event will be used for a foundation fund for the organization, the major purpose is to tell Georgians about products of their own state and thus to sell them on these products. It is education of a practical and valuable nature.

Most Georgians believe they know their state. Yet there are many things made, grown and developed within its borders with which thousands of persons are unfamiliar. Therefore, the exposition's slogan is a good one—"If Made in Georgia, Show It."

In this manner, Georgians will become acquainted with a number of things the very existence of which will be surprising. For the exposition will include representative exhibits from a variety of interests, industrial, manufacturing, horticultural, agricultural, dairying, packing, canning, ceramics, natural resources, wild life, applied arts, the fine arts, rural handicrafts and allied arts.

With this range of interest, it is easy to see that the exposition will assemble in one great center at the municipal auditorium an amazing variety of products that should serve the exhibit's purpose—to sell Georgia to Georgians.

SPIES IN AMERICA

Because of the nation's geographic isolation, its friendliness toward other countries and the width of the oceans between the world and America, no foreign nation has in the past felt the need of maintaining a system of organized espionage within the borders of the United States. For similar reasons the United States has found no cause for building up an organization to spy into the affairs of other countries. The practice has been simply foreign to American shores.

The recent arrest in New York of a number of alleged German spies, therefore, comes as a distinct shock to a nation totally unaccustomed to the system. In Europe, and to a lesser degree in Asia and Africa, every country has its espionage system. It is just as important, apparently, as interchanging ambassadors, except the spies are thrown on their own resources when difficulties arise. Naturally, no country would openly admit to spying into the military affairs of an allegedly peaceful neighbor. Such, in itself, would constitute an act of war—would doubtless result in war—except for the fact the neighbor was also guilty of the same practice.

Today, as rarely before in the history of Europe, has the espionage system been widely expanded. With neighbor arming against neighbor the spirit of belligerency has been cultivated to such an extent that all nations have been forced to look with suspicion upon each other; to spy out, if possible, the extent of the war preparations and the real motive behind them. France, within the week, has set the penalty at death for certain forms of espionage. In Alsace, on the German border, it is reported there were some 250 convictions on charges of espionage during 1937 alone. Literally hundreds of alleged spies have already been put to death in Germany and Russia.

As the oceans are narrowed, as nations are drawn closer to America by modern means of communication and transportation, it cannot be doubted that a system of espionage will gradually be developed in the United States. The present cases are, in all probability, merely forerunners of the future.

FATHER TIME LAUGHS

The vagaries of time have seldom been better illustrated than in the two footnotes to the Silhouettes column on this page last Wednesday. Twenty-five years ago it was recorded in a dispatch from Cordele that cotton—King Cotton—was dead and that diversification in farming reigned supreme. "The remarkable change of plans and methods in Georgia farming during the past few years," is duly noted.

In the 25 years that have since elapsed a great war has been fought and King Cotton has reigned anew. The small patches of cotton the reporter of that year noted grew into long mile on mile of white-topped fields, draining their life blood without thought. Today, the same dispatch might be reprinted as fact again. Tomorrow? Maybe Georgia has learned a lesson from the past. Maybe the farmers of the future will keep King Cotton on the throne, but in a limited monarchy which will afford constitutional rights to the soil and to the demands of the new economy of the south.

Fifty years ago, the other footnote said, the Charleston baseball team was lost in the wilds and reports had it that Memphis had disbanded its team. "This will probably lead to the death of professional ball in the south," the correspondent solemnly noted.

Today, only the Chattanooga Lookouts appear lost—in the cellar of the Southern league with Knoxville—and Memphis sits in fourth place, one of the best baseball towns of the circuit. Atlanta rests on top in the pennant fight and baseball reigns as the king of sports.

Time may be cast as a decrepit old gentleman armed with a scythe, but he displays on occasion a satiric sense of humor.

A rift grows steadily between the '39 world's fairs at New York and San Francisco, respectively, over which is the annex.

A Broadway report, that all the ventriloquists are now employed, leaves us confused. We seem to have some dummies left over.

GETTING THE MONEY OUT OF THE BANKS

(From The Charlotte Observer.)

The President has made a move by which he hopes that idle billions lying in the private banks of the country may be channeled out to customers in the form of loans and thereby made operative to the end of new business adventure and stimulation.

The bankers will, no doubt, heartily second any motion in this direction, other things being equal.

They do have these idle billions to an embarrassingly large degree in the vaults of their institutions.

Probably there has never been a time when these individual financial houses were engaged in such an eager and sharp competition to locate customers to whom they could lend some of this vast surplus of capital.

And yet, even though the administration sincerely undertakes to revise the federal banking rules and techniques in such a way as to encourage and to make it possible for the banks to lend this money on more liberal and flexible terms, the same old question arises as to the ability of the customer to meet the simple, practical and vital requirements demanded of a borrower.

It makes no difference at all how cheaply money may be obtained from the banks, nor how long a period a loan may be legally granted nor what other inductive and conciliatory policy the banks may adopt in order to find customers for their wares, unless these customers want the money, in the first place, and unless they turn up with the proper credentials with which to get it, the log-jam remains.

One of the reasons for this accumulated reserve of lendable resources in the banks of the country is to be found in the circumstance that individuals and corporations which could easily qualify as borrowers are in no borrowing attitude. They have been afraid to venture out.

In a word, social, industrial, political and economic conditions have been so chaotic that prudent businessmen preferred to hang close to the harbor and to keep their ships out from the stormy seas of speculative enterprise.

That's the basic reason that there are three billions of available money in the banks of this country.

AMERICA SPEAKS

Democrats in Survey Vote Against Purge of Court Plan Foes; President's Strategy of Avoiding Primary Fights on Court Issue Agrees With Popular Opinion.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, June 30.—President Roosevelt's recent fireside chat contained one piece of political strategy which is notably in line with public opinion. Preparatory to his swing through the west, the President declared he would not oppose a candidate in a Democratic primary merely because of that candidate's vote "on any single issue"—meaning, according to most observers, his vote on the supreme court plan last year. Of more importance, said the President, is the candidate's "general attitude toward present-day problems."

A survey of opinion shows that if the President were to base his party purge on the court issue alone, it might have the effect of a boomerang.

MAJORITY CONDEMN

PURGE OF PARTY

A sizable majority of voters in his own party, according to the survey, think he should not try to defeat Democratic senators who were against him on the court bill.

The study was conducted by the Institute among voters in all states. They were asked: "Do you think the Roosevelt administration should try to defeat in the primary elections Democratic senators who opposed the President's plan to enlarge the supreme court?"

SILHOUETTES

As far as eye could see,
I said, all that picture of beauty
Belongs, today, to me.

In Depravity

While the officer personnel of the United States army is, as a whole, a gang of particularly swell guys, there must be, by the law of averages, an occasional exception. There is always one bad apple in a barrel, you know, and even pearls are sometimes found with serious blemishes.

Well, this story is about an army post a long way from Atlanta.

There was a young officer assigned to duty there who turned out to be anything but a gentleman. He proved the very antithesis, in fact, of the popular conception, as to conduct, of the storied "officer and gentleman."

So notorious and outrageous, in fact, did his conduct become that the time arrived when the brigadier general in command of the post could ignore the scandal no longer. Something had to be done. And the b. g. decided the first step should be a public denunciation of the young scoundrel before all the officers of the post. So, at the officers' club, one evening when all were gathered for conference, the b. g. arose to do his duty.

"I Regret, Gentlemen—"

"I regret, gentlemen, with all my heart the unpleasant duty that faces me," began the b. g. Then he mentioned the offending man and listed some of his offenses.

"He has," he said, "issued numerous worthless checks. He has stolen funds from the officers' mess. He has been caught in flagrante delicto, stealing at cards. He has recklessly contracted debts he can never hope to pay. He has lied and stolen and cheated. He does not attend to his duty. He is slovenly, ill-mannered and a cad. He has insulted women in the families of friends and brother officers. In short, gentlemen, he is a totally obnoxious character."

"I actually suspect, gentlemen, he is one of those lowest among living creatures—a solitary drinker!"

Advertising

The South

The Buffalo (N. Y.) Chamber of Commerce, perhaps unwittingly, runs what amounts to a tempting, even though false, advertisement for the industrial south in the June 24 issue of its organ, "Buffalo Business."

Intended as a cartoon argument against granting the south equal railroad freight rates with other sections of the country, the cartoon depicts southern manufacturers as a bloated capitalist enjoying every possible advantage. Spread on the table before this character is a repast with various dishes labeled "No Taxes," "Free Shipment," "Wages," "Long Hours," "Every Advantage," etc. And the diner is complaining to the chef (ticketed I. C. C.) because there is no cheese on his apple pie. The cheese in the kitchen is called "Reduced Freight Rates."

Nothing more ridiculous could be imagined. If it was even approximately true there wouldn't be an industrialist left in Buffalo within six months. They would all move south.

And there is complete omission of the fact that the south is not asking freight rates lower than other sections, but merely pleads for equality in this important item of operation expense.

But southern manufacturers who happen to see this cartoon, and who have been struggling to keep their plants operating for the sake of their employees, seeing all the time their capital shrinking under continued losses, must smile ruefully as to idea they seem to have about the south—in Buffalo.

It might not be a bad idea to invite the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce to send a few of its representatives—the cartoonist, and the editors of their little paper—to the south for an honest study of industrial conditions here. Say on a six-month scholarship or something.

One Word More

By RALPH MCGILL.

Stubborn Dutch Longstreet

There are not many of them left there at Gettysburg where the survivors of the last romantic war are meeting. I wonder if there is one in all that lot who was present when stubborn Dutch Longstreet argued against that battle.

Dutch Longstreet never approved of it. From first to last he was against it. He lived to write it all down, to argue his case. That is the sort of war it was, the last war of the individual. Discipline there was; they would die for Robert E. Lee or, for that matter, for any other general. But each general had his ideas. Stuart was off on a futile raid, "Beauty" Stuart, the great cavalry leader. Longstreet didn't like the plans.

You may read it in the old books. He came that morning to argue with Lee. Is there any old man left alive who was there, listening, as the men spoke? I can imagine Lee, calm and cold. He was, strangely, not a man of any special warmth. He was not impulsive but in his way as stubborn as Longstreet. He heard him out. And he said, speaking, they say, not so much to Longstreet as to the air as if answering himself: "The enemy is there and I am going to strike him."

It was later that day when George Pickett (who once had talked to a tall man named Abraham Lincoln of his dreams to be a soldier) came to Longstreet for orders. And could get none. So, it was Pickett himself who gave the order for that charge.

There are some who say that stubborn Longstreet lost the battle for Lee. Lee never said. It was lost. The old diaries say that when the broken Army of Northern Virginia retreated, fording the swollen Potomac; they laughed, saying: "Guess they'll call us Lee's Waders, now."

"Aw, it's just the general knows we ain't had a death in two years." So, they crossed back to southern soil, jesting grimly.

Twenty-One

Long, Dying Months

There were 21 long months left after Gettysburg. The names of the war stations on the road to Appomattox are American names. Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, the Yellow Tavern. There was the Wilderness where wounded men burned to death. Chattanooga, Chickamauga.

Gettysburg remains the great name. There was an English officer there, a member of the Cold Stream Guards. He was an observer. He had landed in Texas. His book is worth reading. He reported on the swearing skill of the Texas mule skinnners and that report alone makes the book worth while. It may be found, now and then, in an old book store.

He thought he had never seen anything like the southern soldier. He liked the man in blue, too. But that charge by the Virginians with Pickett leading them stuck in his mind.

These same men went on. There was much dying. Thousands of them were to die on the fields that followed Gettysburg.

George Pickett lived all through the war but he never was quite the same. Men said of him that his heart was broken that third day when he and his men charged that long mile up the blazing rim of the stone wall.

It was mid-July when his son was born. His men lit fires all along the line. Across the way was the Confederacy's line. He saw the lights and because the sentries, swapping tobacco and tea and coffee, had told the story, he knew of the little Pickett.

"Have we no wood for the baby Pickett?" asked the stolid man with the cigar.

So, the Union lines lit fires, too, celebrating the birth of the baby. Next day they sent him a silver service. Two weeks later they killed one another when they moved on Pickett's works.

There was never a war like that one.

Gettysburg

I never think of Gettysburg without thinking of a football stadium at Minneapolis, Minn. It was the late Dan McGugin who stood to address the Vanderbilt football team before a game they were expected to lose.

He, son of a Union soldier who had fought with Sherman at Kenesaw Mountain and who had been captured at a point near where Decatur now is, spoke to them. He told them the southern story which the officer of the Cold Stream guards had written.

This officer had heard the boys in Pickett's brigade talking as they waited for that charge. Most of them were wondering about the boys back home and if they had heard of the battle. He remarked of one boy who said:

"Well, I ain't gonna make Maw ashamed of me."

His team went out that day and won. I remembered feeling the tears in my own eyes as I listened to a simple story of the boys who awaited that charge. And I was not to play but to write about that game.

It is interesting, now and then, to play with the idea of what might have happened had the South won that war—had the charge gone on from First Manassas; from that first day at Gettysburg when the ridges and the round tops could have been taken. It seems so long ago, that war. It is almost incredible men should be there now who fought at Gettysburg 75 years ago.

"The enemy is there and I am going to strike him."

Astoria, Oregon.

First all-American settlement on the Pacific coast was established at Astoria, Ore., in 1811, by colonists who arrived from New York in an expedition sent out by John Jacob Astor. Earlier settlements had been established by Spain and Russia.

Only Weakness Could Make a Mess of Pottage Seem More Valuable Than a Birthright

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Bobby is two years old and a very smart boy for his age. To his parents and grandparents he is an uncommonly satisfactory boy, for he doesn't balk when they ask him to show off before strangers.

Of course he is a vandal. If he is in the garden and momentarily unwatched, he goes to work on a flower bed with both hands, snatching off flower heads two at a clip.

When he was permitted to hold a baby white rabbit, and warned to stroke it gently, the desire to squeeze it overwhelmed him and the rabbit twitched and went limp.

If he can reach a beautiful book, he tears out the leaves. And one time, when a bottle of ink was left within reach, he pulled out the cork and poured the ink on a new rug.

These things are not done in malice or mischief, but in ignorance. He doesn't understand values. A book seems no more valuable than yesterday's newspaper; a hyacinth no more precious than a head of white clover.

Bobby isn't bad. He simply hasn't learned the value of things. Many times in history, civilized cities filled with the beautiful creations of a cultured people have been invaded and looted by vandal barbarians.

In every instance the vandals wantonly destroyed more treasure than they carried off. They stabled their horses in a temple. They used precious volumes to make camp fires. They pulled down and broke beautiful statuary; defiled tapestries and paintings; shattered priceless objects of art for the pure joy of destruction.

They had no conception of the value of the things they destroyed. Books and manuscripts of immeasurable value seemed to them to be worth less than one golden coin or one bottle of wine.

They were incapable of understanding the measure of their offense. That explains, in large measure, the faults of a free people. It isn't meanness that carelessly kills so many thousands on the highway; that makes marriage a casual experiment; that teaches the young to scorn the time-proven rules of virtue; that sacrifices independence and honor and future security for a present benefit.

It isn't meanness, but want of understanding. We have lost our knowledge of values. Something has taught us to prize the wrong things.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Bid me discourse, I will enchant thine ear."

A neat Yankee lady who complained here that the voices of southern women, far from being melodious, are "whiny baby talk," comment comes from far and near. Mrs. H. O. Harm, of Palatka, Fla., vows that the "soft and attractive voices" of the women of the south are recognized all over the country and wonders if the Yankee lady who she described as "whiny baby talk" admits that the whiny-baby-talk type of feminine voice is not uncommon in the south and recalls having had "two next-door neighbors at different times with voices such as she described, and they both came from north Alabama. Now I lived for years in central Alabama, and for many more years in this part of Georgia, and our women don't have that kind of voice. I am constantly begging girls not to give up the precious heritage of soft, low voices, that 'pleasant thing in women' of which Shakespeare speaks. But, unhappily, your correspondent 'had reason'."

A well-known Virginian is pretty mad about it. "After all," he writes, "when one finds it impossible to discover a pleasing thing in the speech of the people of a particular section, isn't it just possible that one hasn't listened for that which is pleasant?"

And from a Birmingham teacher of speech comes another point of view. "At the recent meeting of the Alabama Writers' conference," she says, "its members who had listened for three days to the beautiful, cultured voices of Harriet Hassell (author of 'Rachel's Children'), Florence Glass Palmer, Emmet Kilpatrick, Maud Lindsay and many others, made a formal protest against the uncultured speech of all the characters in movies and radio skits depicting southern life. This protest has already been taken up by various clubs and will, I believe, not only be the result of a more careful attention to the study of speech throughout our entire section."

"It is somewhat disconcerting, I own, to return home and learn that anyone has lived here 15 years (the Yankee lady) without knowing a southern woman with a smooth, cultured voice. Outside my window I hear a woman's voice that would be a delight in any foreign court. I number among my friends many, many well-known women whose voices reflect that 'gentility of spirit' indicative of generations of culture and refinement. . . . Voices in the Middle Atlantic States and the south are more resonant and less nasal than those of the extreme north and midwest; the consonants of the latter section are more clear-cut, while the southern voice excels in vowel tones. In the south now are people representing practically every state in the Union and many foreign countries. These people have brought with them speech habits, resulting both from environment and heredity. If these

BARCELONA ASKS NEUTRAL INQUIRY OF RAID ON BLANES

45 Are Killed in Badalona, Workers' Town, by Rebels' Planes.

LONDON, June 30.—(P)—A meeting of the complete non-intervention committee has been called for Monday when 27 nations will be asked to give final approval of a plan for evacuation of foreign soldiers in Spain.

BARCELONA, June 30.—(P)—The Spanish government invoked today for the first time the British plan to humanize the civil war by asking for a neutral investigation of yesterday's air raid on Blanes.

The request was dispatched to London, where it was presented to Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax by Pablo de Azcarate y Florez, Barcelona's ambassador there, as insurgent warplanes returned from a raid on Badalona. At least 45 persons were killed in Badalona, a workers' town five miles north of here. Nearly 100 wounded were taken to this city in ambulances.

In the air raid on Blanes, nine persons were killed and 39 injured.

The government appealed to British for the proposed neutral commission to investigate the Blanes bombing as an attack on an undefended civilian center.

It charged the raid was "a new aggression of German-Italian aviation in the service of the Rebels (Insurgents)."

"The Spanish government," it said, "maintains this aerial attack was not justified by the existence in Blanes of any objectives of military character."

The British plan provides for investigation of raids at the request of either side in Spain by a neutral commission which would make public reports intended to bring the pressure of world opinion against attacks of civilians.

REBELS PENETRATE LOYALISTS' LINES

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), June 30.—(P)—The Spanish government today apparently was fighting a losing battle to keep the insurgents from pushing through the defenses of the Teruel-Mediterranean highway in the drive for Valencia.

Insurgent field headquarters reported heavily reinforced troops penetrated the government's lines in two places in the Onda sector. Galicians commanded by General Miguel Aranda swept down to the edge of Artana, a village 30 miles airline north of Valencia.

Eleven miles northwest of Artana, another force under general Garcia Valino was in action near Fanzara.

Insurgents reported Valino had forced a crossing of the Mijares river south of Fanzara but the government denied this.

STRICKEN JAPAN SPARED TYPHOON

Earthquake-Buffered Islands Believed To Have Escaped Further Havoc.

TOKYO, July 1.—(Friday)—(P)—The government today listed 197 dead or missing and 13 of Japan's main railways disrupted in two days of storm and earthquakes.

A typhoon which had been roaring toward the country's eastern coast veered to the northwest, apparently sparing further damage.

Domei (Japanese news agency) said it was possible parliament would be summoned into special session to consider relief measures. Police check-ups of the damage Wednesday and Thursday recorded 297,379 houses destroyed or damaged, 104 bridges washed out and 177 landslides.

Railroads and telegraph lines were out of order over wide areas, crippling Tokyo's communication with other main cities.

In fear of the typhoon, the majority of liners and larger freighters delayed scheduled departures. The central meteorological station warned all cities of southern Japan to be prepared for the typhoon.

Most of the fatalities were in Tokyo and Yokohama, where many landslides crushed homes. The two days brought 12 inches of rain, the heaviest deluge in 60 years of recorded weather data.

More than 13,500,000 Americans play some type of musical instrument. Most popular instruments are the piano, the guitar and the piano accordion.

POPE ASKS JAPAN TO SPARE CIVILIANS

Holy See Reaffirms Its Abhorrence of Bombings of Noncombatants.

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, June 30.—(P)—The Holy See reaffirmed its abhorrence of bombings of civilian populations in pronouncements today on both Spain and China.

A papal appeal to the Japanese government to spare non-combatants as far as possible was disclosed as Pope Pius personally expressed his pleasure on receiving promises from Generalissimo Franco, Spanish insurgent leader, "to limit victims and suffering of war."

A Vatican news service said the Pope had appealed to Tokyo to "spare the civil population in so far as possible" in conducting aerial bombardments in China. Representations were made through the apostolic delegate in Tokyo, Monsignor Paolo Marella.

Franco's message to the Pontiff was conveyed by Don Jose Maria de Yanguas y Messia, Viscount of Santa Clara and Avedillo, the insurgent regime's first ambassador to the Holy See.

The Pontiff, receiving the envoy, expressed "words of affection for Franco" upon receiving his "noble promises... to limit victims and suffering of war," the news service said.

It quoted the Pope also as saying he prayed for an end soon to Spain's troubles and that "the future be according to the will of God and that God give Franco the joy and glory of announcing to Spain and the world the end of these tribulations."

L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican newspaper, commented today on the Spanish government's position regarding civilian bombing. In connection with the Barcelona government's note today to Britain asking investigation by the projected neutral commission of a bombing at Blanes yesterday, the newspaper said:

"Barcelona adheres to proposals to constitute a neutral commission of inquiry to limit and humanize aerial warfare. The despoilers of churches and the assassins of innocent lives speak in their note of 'morally inadmissible' war and of the necessity of measures to limit aerial bombardments."

SERVICES ARE HELD FOR VICTIMS OF 4TH

Rites in New Jersey Are Conducted in Advance.

PACKANACK LAKE, N. J., June 30.—(P)—Although premature and anticipatory, this community conducted a "memorial service" today for "the Americans who will be killed in action during the next four days celebrating their independence."

Harry Daniels, president of the Packanack Lake Dramatic Club, placed a wreath on a stone marker inscribed "In memoriam, victims of July Fourth, 1938."

The service also included a prayer for highway and fireworks casualties "expected throughout the nation," and taps were sounded while the flag over the country club was lowered to half staff.

Mr. McGill spoke on the Scandinavian countries from which he recently returned.

JAPANESE CIRCLE YANGTZE BARRIER

Chinese Withdraw Major Forces to Hill Positions Above River.

SHANGHAI, June 30.—(P)—Chinese erected new defense lines today at Kiukiang as the Japanese, driving up the Yangtze river for Hankow, drew tighter their net of men and steel around the Matowchen boom.

Kiukiang is 135 miles down the river from Hankow and 40 miles beyond is the barricade of rock-filled junks and system of defenses which has held the invaders in check.

Chinese military authorities admitted the major Chinese forces had been withdrawn from the defenses to hill positions dominating the Yangtze between the boom and Pengtsch, 15 miles to the southwest.

This was interpreted as indicating the Japanese virtually had completed occupation of the river.

JAPANESE CIRCLE YANGTZE BARRIER

Chinese Withdraw Major Forces to Hill Positions Above River.

SHANGHAI, June 30.—(P)—Chinese erected new defense lines today at Kiukiang as the Japanese, driving up the Yangtze river for Hankow, drew tighter their net of men and steel around the Matowchen boom.

Kiukiang is 135 miles down the river from Hankow and 40 miles beyond is the barricade of rock-filled junks and system of defenses which has held the invaders in check.

Chinese military authorities admitted the major Chinese forces had been withdrawn from the defenses to hill positions dominating the Yangtze between the boom and Pengtsch, 15 miles to the southwest.

This was interpreted as indicating the Japanese virtually had completed occupation of the river.

The Chinese said a rear guard force was maintaining resistance within some of the forts of the Matowchen defense system.

In Hankow it was reported Japanese troops forced their way through the Chinese outer lines and past gun emplacements on the south bank of the Yangtze while other units from Anking circled Chinese positions and reached the river's north bank southwest of the boom.

The aim of the latter move was to attack the rear of the north bank defenses.

Japanese warships at the same time kept up a continuous bombardment of the boom defenses and extended the shelling up river against newly prepared Chinese positions, especially at Chingshanpa.

The United States gunboat Monocacy and a British warship were in the river at Kiukiang where Chinese defense preparations were being intensified.

JAPANESE EXTEND WAR-MEASURE CURB

TOKYO, June 30.—(P)—Japan's war-measure curb upon production of goods for domestic use was extended by the ministry of commerce today to apply to all types of hides and skins.

The act was promulgated yesterday, factories being ordered to quit producing a long list of products for domestic use, principally goods of cotton cloth and iron.

HERE'S THE GREAT 1938 EDITION
"G-3" ALL-WEATHER

BUILT FOR 1938 DRIVING NEEDS WITH
CENTER TRACTION—more sharp-edged diamonds nested closer together provide maximum skid resistance in all directions—greatest stopping power—surest-footed traction.
WIDER TREAD—gives extra road contact; insures slower, more even wear.
SUPER-TOUGH RUBBER—an exclusive new Goodyear compound that resists the grinding action of high-speed travel, increasing mileage.
MAXIMUM BLOWOUT AND BRUISE RESISTANCE—from patented Supertwist cord in every ply.
PLUS HIGHEST QUALITY WORKMANSHIP that comes from Goodyear's priceless experience as the world's largest tire maker.

HOW long since you've had the proud thrill of putting on brand new Goodyears—all around?

What a feeling of calm comfort to roll smoothly along on these big, soft, handsome tires that soak up the roughest spots any road has to offer!

And this year, in the "G-3" for 1938, Goodyear gives you more than you've asked of any tire!

It's got the same basic All-Weather tread, to be sure. To be sure of giving closer. That's to give you still greater grip—for quicker stops and faster starts.

They're deeper too. That's to give you still more safe, non-skid mileage.

Best of all, the rubber in that thick, diamond-studded tread is tougher than ever before.

Thanks to a new Goodyear compound, it's been made tougher to fight the grueling grind-away action of today's high speed driving on hard-surfaced roads.

And of course the carcass of this great "G-3" for 1938 is built with Goodyear's patented Supertwist cord—the best protection against blowouts and bruises built into any tire.

So, before you fall for any "new" or "amazing" tire that offers some pretty tread pattern of ribs or wrinkles—just drop around to your Goodyear dealer's and see the "G-3's" he's got for you.

Then get yourself a set and be set for many thousands of miles of modern trouble-free travel.

THIS INFALLIBLE SAFETY MEMBER COMPLETES THE MODERN TIRE

The only sure protection against dangerous accidents caused by blowouts is the Goodyear LifeGuard—an invulnerable reserve tire that replaces the conventional inner tube inside your casing. When a blowout occurs the LifeGuard keeps enough air under you to carry the car to a safe stop without the slightest lurch or swerve.

WAGE SLASH MADE
BY CALLAWAY MILL
LAGRANGE, Ga., June 30.—(AP) Callaway mill officials today announced wage reductions of 16 per cent in all of the company's plants effective immediately. Reduction of village house rentals also was announced.

The wage cut follows a reorganization of the executives in which several officials resigned and reductions were made in the salaries and number of office employees.

Mill officials said the economic, competitive situation in the textile industry made the reductions necessary. Reductions are in line with adjustments of other textile mills throughout the south, it was asserted.

Miss Jarrard Weds M. C. Abercrombie

GAINESVILLE, Ga., June 30.—Miss Berna Jarrard, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Jarrard, became the bride of Maurice Camp Abercrombie, of Atlanta, in an alfresco wedding Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in Gainesville. Dr. Hugh H. Harris, of Emory University, performed the ceremony.

Billy Jarrard and Lamar Jarrard Jr., nephews of the bride, were the ushers, and the flower girl was Berna Elizabeth Jarrard, niece and namesake of the bride. The matron of honor was Mrs. Jerome Russell Hurd, of Clintondale, N. Y., the former Miss Elizabeth Cowart, of Atlanta and Fairburn. The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the bridegroom and the best man, John Braswell, of Atlanta. Nuptial music was played by Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs and Miss Elizabeth Jackson, of Atlanta.

The bride's gown was of sheer rose chiffon made with close-fitting bodice, princess style, and she wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Jesse C. Jarrard, the bride's mother, wore a gown of pink lace and a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Mabel Abercrombie kept the bride's book.

Immediately following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Abercrombie left for a motor trip to the gulf coast and points west. The bride wore a traveling ensemble of sage green with copper hat and accessories. After August 15 they will be at home at 416 Hopkins street, southwest.

Among the Atlantans attending were Mr. and Mrs. James DeWitt Abercrombie, parents of the groom; Dr. and Mrs. Hugh H. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Giles, Mrs. J. Connor Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Werner, Mr. and Mrs. Steele O. York, Mrs. Myers Lovelless, Mrs. Marene W. Snow, Mrs. Raymond H. Wolfe, Mrs. Lewis Cottongim, Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs, Mr. and Mrs. John N. Braswell, Misses Lou Hoben, Margaret Kendrick, Clemmie Willingham, Louise Girardeau, Olivia Herren, Marian E. Hoben, Cynthia Ward, Elizabeth Jackson, Kate L. Favor, Maude Elliott, Mabel Abercrombie, and Carter Whittaker, Bill Whittaker and Ranne Hoben.

Manicure Aids Should Keep Nails Healthy as Well as Beautiful

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.—Yesterday afternoon my daughter and I sat by the fire for an hour and talked. We tried to remember all the things we meant to discuss during her stay. If I have one quarrel with modern life, it is what the leisure one is always looking for is never in the present but always in the future, and the people one would like to sit with in an untroubled mood are always somewhere else and rarely by your side. Anna, John and I had supper together and then I brought them to the train which took them to Detroit for the first part of their trip back to Seattle. Then I returned and spent an hour or so with Mrs. Scheider to celebrate her first evening at home.

Back at the big house I found myself sitting down in Ethel and Franklin Jr.'s room, when I should have gone to bed. I think family discussions are very valuable, but I wonder why it is usually so much easier to talk in the middle of the night. I finally left them with the feeling that they would never wake up to catch their train this morning unless they had some sleep, though all of us were apparently quite ready to go on talking indefinitely.

Once in bed, I started to read and suddenly realized that on the 28th of June I was actually cold, so I began prowling about the house and finally, on a couch, found a homespun blanket which I took back to add to my summer bed covering. We certainly have the strangest climate in the world. Last week, out on my porch, a sheet seemed more than I could bear, and this week, indoors, one blanket isn't enough.

Today the skies have cleared and the sun is out, but our brook has risen far beyond its usual banks and in consequence the cottage cellar is flooded. If any of you live in the country and have struggled with conditions of this kind, you will know how annoying it is to do everything you can to waterproof a cellar and then find that your pump doesn't work and the other precautions you have taken seem just as useless. However, after reading the morning papers and seeing that this little storm we have been having has done $4,000,000 worth of damage to crops, homes and roads, I certainly should not complain about anything which has happened here.

We have a fascinating little boy staying with us, and I can quite understand the story which his mother told me this morning. It appears that he does not like little girls. This came out when I suggested that he might play with one who lives near by. On inquiring about this dislike at the early age of two and a few months I was told that as soon as the little girls saw him, they took to kissing and hugging him, and he found that somewhat trying.

Lillian Mae Patterns

MATRON'S DRESSY COTTON FROCK. Pattern 4840.

Here's a smart recipe for looking slimmer and prettier—as you go about doing your "home-work," or step into the car to give the children a morning drive! Take Lillian Mae's new Pattern 4840 and some nice crisp percale, dimity or linen—and run yourself up a couple of frocks at small cost. Even if you use this pattern a little later on for an early fall dress, you'll find that the yardage in a dark crepe gives your purse only a trifling setback. How pleased you'll be with the slenderizing appeal of the long center panel with its new scalloped closing! How you'll relish the neat yoke and collar—the choice of sizes! Pattern 4840 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 7/8 yards 36-inch fabric and 1 3/8 yards lace edging.

make a picture again. First "Infidelity" was abandoned because the Hays office doesn't like that particular misdemeanor on the screen. And now "The Shining Hour" has been postponed because Director Frank Borzage believes it does not contain enough action for the veteran star. It is now five months since Joan appeared before a camera. Her return to work is clouded with a question mark that is making her a sick woman.

Somehow, I cannot see Norma Shearer as Scarlett in "Gone With the Wind." Sorry, I promised not to mention the subject again—but this is the last time, this week. Norma is too nice for Scarlett, who is essentially hard and materialistic. I expect George Cukor is of the same opinion, because after 18 months of preparation he has suddenly bowed out of the picture.

Mussolini is very annoyed about the Hollywood treatment given his favorite film star—Isa Miranda—who became mysteriously ill and was peremptorily removed from the cast of "Zaza." Il Duce is threatening a boycott of all Paramount pictures in Italy unless Isa is reinstated, but the studio says "Nothing doing." Mile. Miranda's collapse started with her first quarrel with Nazimova, who was hired to teach her American film technique. But Isa said—in Italian—"I am an actress—who is Nazimova?"—which is not the way to talk about a great artist. Claudette Colbert, who succeeds the Italian, will cost the picture another $150,000. Gloria Dickson has had her nose remodeled. It was a little stubby at the end. Jean Herscholt writes from Callander, Ontario, that the most amazing thing he has seen up there are the quintuplets doing their setting-up exercises. In this respect, the young ladies are complete individualists.

That feud between Bette Davis and Errol Flynn was about which one of them should receive star billing. Some sort of a compromise has been effected with both getting a co-starring presentation—but the atmosphere on the set is still very tense. You would think that Virginia Bruce would be very

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

WATCH OUT FOR SUNBURN, WINDBURN AND POISON IVY.

The week end of July Fourth officially inaugurates the sunburn season, and if you ride home from the beach in an open car and add windburn to sunburn, you'll know you've got something!

Even on a hazy day you are not safe from the sun. The infra-red rays which cause the burn come right through the vapor, while the ultra-violet rays which give you a suntan are stopped, and you burn without browning.

Since this is your first real exposure to the summer sun, do not try to bake to a rich brown all in one sitting, or to prove that you "can take it!" Suntan is something you should work up to gradually. On the first day, if you are wise, you will limit yourself to an hour in the early morning sun and then move over into the shade.

Along about 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon you can have another hour, provided you feel up to it. The beginner should venture out only in the early morning sun, for the ultra-violet rays are too strong between the hours of 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. Unless you have already acquired a protective coating of tan, you should not remain in the sun more than 15 minutes during these hours. On the second and third mornings you may be able to take an hour and a half of sun before 11 a. m., unless you have a burn from the day before.

The insidious thing about sunburn is that you do not realize you are getting it until you have got it. Watch for the first sign of redness in the skin. Get out of the sun the minute your skin begins to glow and feel hot to the touch. Lingered 10 minutes more may leave you with a severe burn.

The danger from sunburn is that it interferes with the normal functioning of the pores. The skin is unable to throw off the poisons from the body and an additional burden is placed on the kidneys. Chilling further taxes the already overworking to cope with the burn, so do not let the breeze blow directly on you.

The same vacationist works up to a suntan gradually.

If you do get a burn, drink plenty of water and fruit juices. Do not gulp down quantities of ice while you are hot, but have the water cool and sip it slowly to avoid indigestion.

You should protect your hair from the direct blaze of the sun. The beauty and health of the hair depends upon its cystine content and part of the cystine is destroyed by those same ultra-violet rays which give your skin a golden tan. That is the reason too much summer sun can make your hair look and feel like a bale of shredded wheat.

And, of course, your eyes should be protected from the bright glare with dark glasses! If you take to the woods instead of the beach, I hope you recognize from a distance that little three-leaved plant, the toxicodendron—poison ivy to you!

Now do try and have a pleasant week end.

New Polish Remover Pads Prevent Nails From Becoming Harsh and Brittle

By LILLIAN MAE.

Not since the days of Cleopatra, when women secretly guarded the formulae with which they tinted their nails, have bright fingertips held the spotlight of the beauty stage as they do now.

This being true, it is necessary to have manicure preparations that lend not only beauty, but health as well. A very reliable firm, realizing that a proper polish remover is very essential, has brought out one with a glycerine base which promotes health while doing its removing job. It can be obtained either in liquid form or in convenient pink pads, packed in an attractive pink lac-effect jar.

One pad will do an entire removing job, from all 10 nails, so you can see how long a jar of 40 will last.

This same firm has a thick opaque polish base designed to protect nails as they grow, allowing brittle, splitting nails to develop a healthy, supple condition. Then there is a colorless protective base sufficiently creamy in texture to be used as a colorless nail polish as well as a base.

If you are interested in the new muted shades of violet, rose and twilight polishes for use on both fingers and toes this season, I can tell you of an extremely lovely enamel in these shades.

Phone me at my office in The Constitution building for further information on these manicure aids, or if you do not live in Atlanta write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

MAYBE THE JUDGE IS WRONG

County judge writes, and even if he were justice of the peace, I listen:

"All the grown members of our family read your articles and I am sure we have benefited by them. "Old ideas die hard, though, and I find it hard to accept your oft-repeated statements that nothing can get through the unbroken skin. . . .

"One summer my brother and I, attending a little country school, caught the itch. An old neighbor woman told our mother how to mix the lard and sulphur, and instructed her to give us a heaping teaspoonful of sulphur internally, "to drive the itch out to the surface."

"When we balked, the old woman said we could prove the sulphur comes out through the skin by shaking our socks over a hot stove 24 hours after taking the dose.

"We tried it out, and the pinpoints of burning sulphur proved the old lady's theory."

"Maybe you're right, I don't know."

Anyway the judge's experiment was as well controlled and as scientific as the experiments of one David I. Macht, M.D., who reported in the Jour. A. M. A., February 5, 1938, that all sorts of medicines and poisons are absorbed through the skin if one applies them with just the proper turn of the wrist and so on. My skin is still available for a showdown on this question. But, then, probably my hide is tougher than a guinea pig's.

The judge has me wrong, however. I do not deny that sulphur is excreted through the skin in large amounts of sulphur or sulphides are taken internally. Many substances are excreted, in part, in the sweat—for instance iodine, lead, mercury. Practically the amount of any drug or chemical or poison excreted in the sweat, is insignificant in any circumstance, compared with the amount excreted via the intestine, kidneys and lungs. What I do deny is that anyone has produced any scientific evidence to indicate that any drug, food, chemical, poison or other substance is absorbed through unbroken skin, no matter how it may be applied.

The sulphur and lard treatment is the best treatment for scabies, the old-fashioned itch, the seven-year itch, or whatever fancy local name you please to call it. The success of the treatment depends on (1) the perfection of the ointment—the powdered sulphur, say two ounces of it, must be so thoroughly rubbed with the pound of lard that no particle of sulphur can be seen or felt with the fingers; (2) the patient must be scrubbed with hot soap and water to within an inch of his life—scrubbed with a brush to the limit of endurance, then thoroughly dried, and (3) the ointment well rubbed in and an excess left on the skin wherever the slightest indication of the itch is evident.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Milk Diet.

When a heart disease patient is put on milk diet there are any limit to the quantity of milk he can take? Is there a special milk diet for heart disease? (A. M. B.)

Answer—I know of none. The Karez diet, sometimes used in cases of dropsy, from heart disease, is an exclusive diet of skim milk, but this is not often used today. A patient on a milk diet should have specific instructions from the doctor as to the quantity of milk to be taken.

Now On Her Metal.

Recently married and received a set of aluminum cooking pots and pans. I notice a brown or blackish stain on the aluminum ware after cooking some vegetables, and, although it resists scrubbing, it comes off when I cook tomato, apple or berries. Is this harmful? (Mrs. H. P. Jr.)

Answer—It is harmless.

Better Baby Book.

I still have my copy of your first baby book published, I think, about 15 years ago. Now I am an expectant grandmother and would like to give my daughter-in-law a copy of the latest Brady Baby Book. (Mrs. C. N. B.)

Answer—Send a three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for the Bigger Brady Better Baby Book. Enclose 10 cents coin if you would like also a copy of "Preparing for Maternity."

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

What does it indicate when the boy friend insists on going to a "Western" when his girl friend prefers a "Romantic" when he's never hungry at the time she suggests a sandwich; when he invariably makes his choice of what he wishes to do and takes it for granted that she will like it? This boy friend has his points: He lends the girl his car twice a week, gives her lovely presents including a wrist watch and a ring, takes her on trips when both can get away from work. Is she expecting too much in wanting him to let her have her way in small matters?

PUZZLED.

ANSWER:

Every girl that ever fell in love wanted her boy friend to give her her way in small matters and if he has refused she has made mountains out of molehills. Have they all expected too much? Presumably they have because rarely does one boast that she's got what she called for beyond the first year of engagement. If that long.

As to indications, they point pretty clearly to selfishness. It usually happens that in the first throes of love the selfish boy friend forgets himself and thinks exclusively of his girl friend and her pleasures, being temporarily blind to his own selfishness. He begins to catch up the things he's left off for her and to leave off things he's put in for her. He just can't be bothered with catering to a woman's whims, indefinitely.

No more does he open the date conversation by asking considerably "What do you want to do this evening. Instead he says: "I want to see that Western. Let's go." Somehow, she set back, she trots along, thinking this is a phase which will pass. Until one fine day she wakes up to the realization that this is way it's going to be from there out. Then she's the big of war, which will continue from one to ten years, depending on how long both hold out—unless it happens that she's willing to trot along with him where ever he leads her.

All of which is perfectly natural, seeing you love doesn't change natures even though it blinds lovers temporarily to one another's faults, and makes each believe the other is a piece off the moon. When sight returns both discover that the moon was made of cheese.

This discovery, which some make before marriage and some after, is, in poetic language, known as disillusionment. It comes to all but some take it much better than others.

MAKE HOME CANNING A PLEASURE WITH EASY METHODS, NEW RECIPES

"RED-HOT" PICKLE NEEDS NO COOKING.

The tasty pickles, vegetables, fruits you need for next winter—can them in modern ways that leave your kitchen cool and you untroubled.

Delicious and easy is "Red Hot"—a tangy, spicy red tomato pickle you put up without going near your stove.

Chop coarsely four quarts of peeled tomatoes, add one cup salt. Put in cheesecloth bag and drain overnight. Next morning add 1 cup chopped, peeled onion, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup chopped celery, 1-4 cup mustard seed, 1 tablespoon black pepper, 1 1/2 tablespoons ground cloves, 1 1/2 tablespoons ground cinnamon, vinegar to cover.

Now sterilize a large earthenware jar, pour in your mixture, weight down with a plate so the vinegar will cover all ingredients. Cover tightly—but don't seal. Store in cool dry place.

Another stand-by you'll want on your shelves is tomato juice. Put up a few jars at a time.

First simmer until tender toatoes you've washed, drained and cut up. Press through fine sieve. Bring juice to boil; add salt if desired.

Now at once pour the juice into sterilized glass jars or tins, process by hot-water bath method for five minutes at 212 degrees Fahrenheit. If you process by heat-controlled oven, use glass jars only—45 minutes at 275 degrees Fahrenheit.

Other vegetables—tender young beets, corn, lima beans, many more—you put up just as easily. For non-acid vegetables use the steam-pressure cooker method.

In our 40-page booklet, "New Ways of Canning Vegetables, Fruits, and Meats," you'll find handy charts showing how to prepare and how long to process according to hot-water bath, heat-controlled oven, steam pressure cooker methods. Time and money-saving recipes for preserves, pickles, relishes, chutneys.

Send 15c for our booklet, NEW WAYS OF CANNING VEGETABLES, FRUITS AND MEATS, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

PLEASANT HOMES

By ELIZABETH M'RAE BOYKIN

THE PERFECT HOSTESS.

Eleanor bought priceless china piece-meal.

Eleanor lives alone and likes it. She's a widow who has found that the "lone" woman is not such a sorry creature after all. We like to visit her, and so do a lot of other people, because, somehow, she's achieved that generous attitude towards hospitality that makes every guest of hers want to come again, and then come again some more.

To Fill In the Gaps.

It isn't so difficult to be a charming hostess when you have a large home, a happy family to fill in the gaps, and the habit of automatically preparing comfort for others besides yourself. Eleanor's miracle is that she can entertain you quite royally just by herself, so that you look forward to two some dinners with her as much as you would to the grandest of formal affairs. How does she do it? We've tried to remember her little secrets after many a charming evening or week end in her small home.

Pride and Pains.

First, she takes just as much pains for a two some dinner as though she were giving a state dinner. Eleanor is by no means wealthy, yet her sturdy but small folding dining table, drawn up before the fire in her living room on winter evenings or in front of a large window overlooking a park in summer, is as notably set as any in the land. Her secret is, of course, that she has bought priceless china piece-meal (you don't need a full service for two) and what she lacks in quantity she makes up in quality and variety. The food she serves is always very special—squabs on toast or sweetbread or inches-thick lamb chops topped with giant stuffed mushrooms. All, you see, the sort of food that you can buy inexpensively for two where it might cost you a small fortune for a regular big family.

She brings everything to the table on a tea-wagon so that she doesn't have to keep hopping up to get things which would cause a dull lag in conversation or necessitate shouting back and forth to the kitchen. Her coffee is superb because she knows how to make two cups at a time, in a small drip pot, instead of a large amount that tastes stale with the second cup after dinner.

She usually has a small nosegay of flowers at each plate and urges you to put yours in your button-hole on departure. She's learned to do varied things with waffles, like spreading them with fish pastes for a light supper (this served with fine tea) or covering them with creamed this and that for more hearty repasts. One waffle iron will keep a lady very busy if she's serving more than two, but it will make just enough without hurry or scurry for a pair.

It's great fun to the lone guest of a lone woman when Eleanor is the hostess!

Sensing advantages to be gained by analyzing adverse bids, declarer soon learns the importance of postponing his play until he can further check on the probable location of other missing high cards as indicated by the opening lead.

Through knowledge of conventional opening leads, declarer is frequently able to locate beyond question the position of adverse high cards and minimize his end-play problems. Information gained from opening leads often confirms declarer's earlier deductions made during the bidding, thus he is able to check one source of information against the other.

Drawing inferences from adverse bidding and the opening lead constitutes two of the essential elementary steps in expert card-playing.

HONOR LEADS.

Full understanding of the meaning of various conventional types of opening leads is essential in the preparatory study of end plays. Attacking high-card opening leads are made from: (1) The top of three touching honors. (2) The top of two touching honors with the third card not more than one step away from the second. There are two exceptions: (a) Ace leads. (b) King leads.

When the lead is a queen, declarer knows opening leader very probably holds the other two lower honors of the suit, at least one of them. When the king is led, declarer plays the leader for the ace, the queen-jack or the queen-10. Except when a short-suit opening against a trump contract, the lead of an honor card denies the next higher-ranking card of the suit and guarantees the next lower.

TOP OF NOTHING.

When the rule of 11 or an examination of declarer's hand and dummy reveals an opening lead to be the top of a worthless suit, declarer is usually justified in placing the missing cards of that suit in the hand opposite the opening leader. He also keeps in mind that missing cards in other suits may be weakly guarded on in tenace positions in opening leader's hand otherwise he would not have opened a worthless suit.

FOURTH BEST LEADS.

Small card opening leads deny honor sequences in the suits and invariably deny touching honor leads in other suits. Leader usually does not hold more than one secondary honor in the suit led.

As a rule, opener will lead his highest card in the suit bid by partner.

Barbara Bell Styles

A CHARMING MID-SUMMER MORNING DRESS.

You're looking for something new and pretty in the way of a practical, bread-and-butter day dress? Well, here it is! And you can make it in a few hours. It's easy to put on and work in, and yet it is sufficiently trim and tailored enough for a dash to the grocery or a drive to the station.

The neckline is cut to a deep V, and the short sleeves are slashed for coolness. Darts at the waistline and on the smooth shoulders make the pattern fit unusually well.

For this useful dress, choose gingham, percale or calico—any sturdy, tubfast cotton. You'll certainly want it in several different colors.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1559-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 38 requires 4 3/4 yards of 35-inch material; 2 1/2 yards of neck.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell spring and summer fashion pattern book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

Atlantans Traveling in Europe Are Entertained by Parisiennes

By Sally Forth.

LETTERS from abroad reveal that Frances Battey, who sailed last April for foreign shores, is having many interesting experiences. Frances, as you know, hails from Albany, Ga., but since her graduation from the University of Georgia she has resided in Atlanta, where she enjoys wide popularity with the younger social contingent.

After a month's visit in London with her cousins, Lady Marston, the former Miss Mary Battey, of this city, and Sir Charles Marston, Frances went to Paris to visit another aunt, Adrienne Battey, who is spending several months in the French capital. The pair occupy an apartment around the corner from the famous Beaux Arts, on the left bank of the River Seine.

Frances writes that one of the high lights marking her stay in Paris was the evening she and her aunt spent with Madame Gerorgette LeBlanc, the noted French actress and author, who was the inspiration for the renowned Maeterlinck's works of genius over a period of many years.

Madame LeBlanc entertained the Georgians in her handsome home, the unique decoration and arrangement of which is a dramatic setting for her distinguished personality, according to her guests' description. The great actress retains her striking beauty and magnetic charm that is ageless, writes the Atlanta pair.

It was a happy reunion for Frances and Peggy Alston Refoule when the latter entertained at her apartment in Paris for her Atlanta friends. You will recall that the daughter of the Ott Alstons became the bride of Paul Refoule early last year, the newlyweds sailing for France soon after the ceremony to make their home in Paris.

The Refoules chaperoned Frances to a tea given at a fashionable cafe by Michel Bivort, a popular bachelor in the French capital.

Sally is informed that Peggy will sail at an early date for the States and will be accompanied by her infant son. It will be Peggy's first visit home since her marriage and Atlanta friends eagerly anticipate her arrival and a glimpse of the Refoule heir.

Madame Henri Dupont, who is known to New York audiences as a lecturer on literary subjects, and described as a brilliant and fascinating Parisienne, entertained for Frances and her aunt, Madame Dupont and Adrienne became friends when they met aboard the steamer Britannic while crossing the Atlantic.

Frances, as you know, chose the steamer Aquitania for her voyage, which was replete with exciting and varied experiences. Being seated at the captain's table on the right of the ship's commander was one of many compliments paid the Georgia belle while a passenger on the liner.

Another thrill for Frances was the day she met George Arliss, the celebrated actor, who was crossing on the same steamer, and who was accompanied by his wife, Florence Arliss.

Frances tore herself away from Paris, which she describes with the one word, "divine," for a visit to Rosemary Perks, who is studying in Munich. Miss Perks is the daughter of Sir Malcolm and Lady Perks, of London.

and at her recent debut in the British capital, Frances was one of the guests.

THOSE patriotic colors, red, white and blue, predominated in the decorations of the party Rosalie Gunby Hardie gave last Tuesday at her home on McKinley road. The occasion commemorated the birthday of three-year-old Syd Hardie and his father, Syd Hardie Sr., whose birthday fell on the same date.

A big drum painted in red, white and blue stripes, graced the center of the table, and miniature drums were attached to red, white and blue ribbons to be drawn as souvenirs by the young guests at three-year-old Syd's party. The birthday cake was iced in white frosting and red holders held white candles to add to the festive decorations.

The party given by Syd Sr. proved to be a real surprise, because all the preparations for the steak fry were going on while he built houses with the blocks his young son received as a present.

Rosalie made a date with her husband to go to the ball game after he finished amusing Syd Jr., but instead of going to the car parked in front of the house, she led him to the garden, where the assembled guests began singing "Happy Birthday to You." Luscious steaks were broiled on the brick grill in the back yard and Syd cut the first slice of the chocolate cake topped with red holders and white candles.

Rosalie is noted for her artistry in planning parties and she added two more successful affairs to her credit when she planned and gave these birthday affairs for her husband and their young son.

IF YOU are a popular young belle and have any superstitions about cutting the thimble in wedding cakes, just forget it. Symbols, it appears, mean absolutely nothing, and that is on the word of Mrs. Vernon Brown, who was one of the bevy of pretty bridesmaids who attended Virginia Toombs when she became Mrs. James Groves on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Brown, who was the only young matron attending the bride, cut the bachelor button in the wedding cake. The button, as well as the thimble, means a life of single blessedness, but Mrs. Brown's marital state belies the superstition.

The other attendants in the wedding, all unmarried, were Jane Edmondson, of Washington, D. C.; Martha Carmichael, Helen Miller, Mary Fortson, Evelyn Burns and Frances Norman.

Miss Emily Alsop Becomes Bride Of Mr. Jordan in Darien, Conn.

DARIEN, Conn., June 30.—The marriage of Miss Emily Harold Alsop, daughter of Mrs. Frederic Winthrop Nelson, of Boca Raton, Fla., and Edward H. Alsop, of Paris, France, to John Frederick Jordan was solemnized here at a quiet ceremony performed at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Howell E. Jackson. The ceremony, which was a quiet affair on account of a recent bereavement in the bride's family, unites families of distinction in the south and east.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Jackson. After the ceremony a reception was held with the guests limited to members of the bride's family and wedding attendants. The bride and groom left in the early evening for New York to sail for Italy where they will spend their honeymoon.

The bride is a representative of distinguished southern families, her mother being the former Miss Eula Jackson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shepard Jackson, who during their lifetime were leaders in the social and financial realms of Atlanta. The bride's only sister is Mrs. Floyd W. Jefferson Jr., of New York. The late Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Alsop, of Washington, D. C., were the bride's paternal grandparents.

The former Miss Alsop attended Finch school in New York and made her debut at a brilliant dance given by her mother at the "The Burn Club in Noroton, Conn., during the season of 1936-37.

Mr. Jordan is the son of Mrs. John Jordan Jr., of Pittsburgh and Erie, Pa. He graduated from the Pomfret school and Sheffield Scientific School at Yale in 1936. He belongs to St. Anthony Club and Delta Psi at Yale and is prominently associated in business in New York. Miss Frances Jordan is his only sister.

Convention of Overseas League To Open With Memorial Service

Women's Overseas Service League will hold its eighteenth annual convention in Atlanta July 3-6. An impressive service of the convention will be the annual memorial service to be held in All Saints Episcopal church on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in commemoration of the 347 American women who died in service overseas during the World War.

The delegates will march from the Biltmore hotel to the church, escorted by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps and representatives of other patriotic organizations, and will enter the church before the service.

Musical will be rendered by the quartet and choir of All Saints church, Joseph Ragan, F. A. G. O., organist and choirmaster. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Theodore St. Clair Will, rector of the parish, and an address given by the Rev. H. J. Miles, D. D., bishop of Atlanta. Buglers from Fort McPherson will sound taps after the benediction.

The public is invited to attend the service.

Miss Dorothy Cosby Honored at Shower.

Miss Dorothy Cosby, bride-elect of July, was honored at a linen shower given recently by Miss Mary Anderson and Mrs. Rex M. Woods at the latter's home on East Rock Springs road.

The house was decorated with yellow gladioli and shasta daisies and a color scheme of yellow and white was carried out. The table was centered with yellow flowers and crystal candleholders held yellow tapers. A feature was the complete wedding party composed of tiny dolls.

Games were enjoyed and Mrs. John Lowry and Mrs. John Carson won prizes.

Invited were Mesdames John M. Lowry, Ralph Reed, Leon C. Mitchum, H. L. DeFoor, C. O. Goddard, Emma Wallace, George Riley, Edith Williamson, Lillie Reddick, W. H. Coffey, Myles Jones, A. F. Cheatham, Ralph Donald, J. G. Mathis, Helene F. Cheatham, W. R. Cosby, Mary Anderson, T. C. Stripling, J. T. EARLY LEAF MART OPPOSED BY GEORGE

Season's Heavy Crop and Late Curings Are Cited
by Senator.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(P)—Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, protested today against a reported proposal to open the Georgia tobacco market during mid-July.

He telegraphed a convention of tobacco men at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the industry in his state would be injured if markets were opened earlier than August 2.

The Georgia senator said he had received letters and telegrams from a number of producers troubled by reports of the early opening. He said the need to postpone the opening resulted from the season's heavy crop, late curings and the fact that marketing quotas were not yet ready for producers.

SETTING OF DATES DELAYED AT MEETING

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., June 30.—(P)—The general meeting of the United States Tobacco Association was held up tonight while members waited for the sales committee to set dates for the tobacco markets.

Chairman J. W. Dunnington, of Farmville, Va., said the exact meeting time of the committee was indefinite because of the absence of some of the members, who attended the funeral of T. M. Anderson, of the Export Leaf Tobacco Company, at Wilson, N. C.

LEAF QUOTA PLAN OUTLINED BY AAA

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(P)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration disclosed today a procedure for establishing marketing quotas under the new crop control law to permit sale without penalty of a maximum of 733,200,000 pounds of flue-cured tobacco.

Officials said the first step would be determination of normal sales for each flue-cured growing farm and adjustment of these figures with state marketing allowances under the national quota.

A penalty of 50 per cent of the sale price will be levied against flue-cured tobacco sold in excess of quotas, deductible from the price at the time of selling.

The national basic quota has been set at 705,000,000 pounds, which will be appropriated to the producing states, chief of which are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, with the exception of 3 per cent, or 2,350,000 pounds, which will be reserved for new growers.

State quotas will be subject to a 4 per cent increase to take care of adjustments in quotas for individual farms, which because of past production might be inadequate. This will permit a possible maximum authorized sale of 733,200,000 pounds.

TROOPERS HUNT DAPPER BANDITS

Youths Take $128 From Truck Driver.

MARIETTA, Ga., June 30.—State troopers and deputy sheriffs from near-by north Georgia counties are on the lookout tonight for two dapper youths, dressed in grey suits and driving a late model grey sedan, who earlier held up and robbed an Atlanta produce truck driver of $128 in cash and a watch.

The driver, listed as Tom Phillips by Sheriff E. M. Legg, told officers the youths crossed their truck off the road near Pumpkin Vine creek, in Bartow county, leaped from their car, pointing guns, robbed him and sped away toward Cartersville.

Chief N. B. Terry, of Acworth, notified Cobb deputies and the state patrol office at Cartersville, but no trace of the fleeing pair has been found as yet.

A grey hat, believed to have belonged to one of the youths, was found north of Acworth, leading officers to believe the holdup car circled back in the direction of Marietta and Atlanta.

The car carried no license plates, the truck driver said.

FALL UNDER MACHINE IS FATAL TO BOY

GRiffin, Ga., June 30.—Roger Carreker, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer C. Carreker, was killed today when he fell beneath a county road scraping machine near his home in Pike county.

The boy's father is a well-known Pike county farmer and lives near Concord, several miles from here.

Surviving are the parents, three sisters, Erna Claire, Bennie Clyde and Frances Carreker, and two brothers, Billy, James and Homer C. Carreker Jr., all of near Concord.

Stewart Trolley in Colorful Exit When Flames Break Out on Roof

One the eve of its being taken out of service in favor of a motor bus, a Stewart avenue street car caught fire yesterday afternoon—less than half a block from fire department headquarters.

The top of the street car was partially burned when a transformer short-circuited as the vehicle turned off Forsyth street into Alabama. Three passengers escaped without injury. Firemen from No. 1 station extinguished the flames.

The incident occurred on one of the last few runs the street car was to make on the Stewart avenue line, which, beginning this morning, will be consolidated with the Piedmont avenue line, both to be served with new 35-passenger motor buses.

Georgia Power Company officials announced reduction of fares on the Virginia avenue coach line in connection with the several routing changes that result from the substitution of buses for street cars on the Piedmont-Stewart line.

At the same time, the company petitioned city council to grant a permanent permit for the shop's buses, which operate from Ponce de Leon avenue and Peachtree street to the capital and city hall. Shoppers' buses have been operating on a temporary basis but have proved so successful the company asks to continue them.

The public works and streets committee of city council yesterday afternoon recommended that the permanent permit be granted, and also that route changes occasioned by the substitution of buses for street cars be approved. Council will act on the recommendations Tuesday afternoon.

Fare on the Virginia avenue coach line has been 10 cents straight, but beginning today will be 10 cents cash, or four tokens for 30 cents, with free transfers. This is the same as on street cars and on the new Piedmont-Stewart avenue line.

Tech Naval Students See Sights Of Havana; Praised by Officers

Engineering Skill Stands Them in Good Stead on Cruise;
Boys Talk Over Preparedness and Decide Adequate Defense Is a Good Guard Against War.

By WILLIAM HASTINGS.
Special Constitution Writer.
HAVANA, Cuba, June 27.—(Via Air Mail).—Hindered by fog and buffeted by tossing seas, the U. S. S. Arkansas, convoyed by the destroyers Roper and Tillman, reached Havana today from Boston carrying naval R. O. T. C. students from the Virginia, Yale, Northwestern and Georgia Tech.

The going was rough for those aboard the destroyers, which rolled and pitched in the heavy seas like the "tin cans" by which they are known. The ponderous Arkansas, a fighting hulk of 30,000 tons, rode the waves and caused no greater discomfort than constantly wet decks from plunging through heavy seas.

The R. O. T. C. students had the opportunity of witnessing the refueling at sea of both the destroyers by the Arkansas. One at a time the destroyers were lashed onto the Arkansas with two 10-inch hawsers. The speed of the Arkansas was reduced to six knots, for several hours the huge craft kept this position, while thousands of gallons of oil were pumped from the Arkansas into the tanks of the destroyers.

Officers aboard the Arkansas have been highly complimentary in their comments on the proficiency of the students, especially the gun handling and navigation ability of the Tech outfit. Mathematics and engineering being the most important requisites of these two sciences, students from the other universities could themselves with the thought that boys from a technological school should be more skilled in these subjects than they.

This cruise has been especially interesting from the viewpoint of the reaction of a cross-section of American youth to the question of preparedness, particularly as it is expressed in a large navy. The majority of the students on the cruiser are not seeking commissions in the United States navy but are interested primarily in preparing themselves for service as officers, should an emergency arise.

Almost without exception and despite a variety of divergent political views among them, they are united in the belief that the best preventive of war is to be prepared for war. A common expression among them is: "A nation prepared for war can avoid war."

Pursuing a rigorous work and study schedule that starts with reveille at 6 o'clock in the morning, the boys go through approximately the same routine as in the midshipmen from Annapolis get on their final cruise. This includes such lowly and back-breaking work as scrubbing decks daily as well as the interesting and highly complex study of navigation.

Every student works out the ship's position and takes his turn at other essentials, including gun drill and watches in the engine room where the temperature rarely drops below 110 degrees Fahrenheit and sometimes jumps to 125 degrees.

BRANNEN ELECTED TO STATE SENATE

Aiken and Franklin Named
To Lower House in Early Bullock Vote.

STATESBORO, Ga., June 30.—(P)—Bullock county had disposed of its general assembly problem today with the election of H. D. Brannen as state senator from the 49th Georgia district and Harry S. Aiken and D. B. Franklin as representatives from Bullock county.

The election—held two and one-half months ahead of the regular September 14 Democratic primary—followed a gentlemen's agreement to keep Bullock's voting "out of the midst of state-wide political rancors."

Chairman Charles S. Reid of the state Democratic executive committee said the action was unusual, but not unprecedented.

Brannen defeated Mrs. Julian C. Lane for the senate post. He will represent the counties of Evans, Bullock and Candler, succeeding Senator J. Sikes, of Manassas, Evans county, under the rotation system.

Aiken led a four-man field including incumbent Representative Prince H. Preston Jr., of Statesboro, Aikensville, Georgia, primary while Franklin took the second assembly seat with 1,114. Marshall Robertson and Preston received 1,102 and 955 votes, respectively.

4-LANE HIGHWAY SOUGHT IN STATE

Project, Estimated to Cost
$6,000,000, Would Be Near Coast Line.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 30.—(P)—A four-lane ribbon of concrete and macadam stretching 126 miles through coastal Georgia from South Carolina to Florida is sought by the coastal highway commissioners.

The improvement program, estimated to cost $6,000,000, would require four years to complete. It would be financed by bond issues in Chatham, Bryan, Liberty, McIntosh, Glynn and Camden counties, aided by federal funds.

Herschel V. Jenkins, of Savannah, chairman of the board of commissioners, said increased traffic necessitated a four-lane divided highway for the six coastal counties. A similar highway already has been started out of Charleston and a contract was let recently in Jacksonville for a four-lane road northward.

Traffic increases. Traffic over the highway, completed in 1926, has increased to an average of 6,200 vehicles daily. A maximum of 10,200 vehicles travel the 18-foot wide road daily during the tourist season.

Plans have been prepared for a 40-foot pavement from the South Carolina state line into Savannah, 10 miles. Construction is under way on the widening of the first 10 miles south of Savannah. This includes three railroad overpasses for four-lane traffic and the widening and resurfacing of the present pavement with a view to constructing two additional lanes with a dividing parkway later.

beginning in 1926, has increased to an average of 6,200 vehicles daily. The maximum of 10,200 vehicles level the 18-foot wide road daily.

Planning the tourist season. The 40-foot pavement from the South Carolina state line into Savannah, miles. Construction is under way covering the widening of the main highways south of Savannah. This includes three bridges and widening for four-lane traffic and the widening and resurfacing of the present pavement with a view to constructing two additional lanes in each direction parallel.

Colorful Excursion On the Roof cars on the Piedmont-Stewart lines.

At the same time, the city authorized city council to grant a permanent permit for the shop-rates' buses, which operate from the depot on Leon avenue and Peachtree street to the capital and city center. The permit has been operating on a temporary basis. It has proved so successful the company asks to continue them.

The public works and streets committee of city council yesterday afternoon recommended that the permanent permit be granted, and also that route changes occasioned by the substitution of buses for street cars be approved. Council will act on the recommendation this afternoon. Fare on the Virginia avenue line has been 10 cents tonight, but beginning today will be 10 cents cash, or four tickets for 30 cents, with free transfers. The fare is the same as on street cars on the Piedmont-Stewart revenue line.

TARZAN AND THE FORBIDDEN CITY No. 41

Magra lay helpless and helpless on the ground, her eyes closed, awaiting death at the hands of the ape. Then she heard Tarzan's voice as he challenged Ungo. At once she opened her eyes, to see the man she loved defying the beast that had captured her.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The Jungle Lord paid no heed to the girl. His attention was centered on his opponent, and Ungo's bloodshot eyes, in turn, were fixed on him. Suddenly Tarzan darted forward. He seized Ungo's wrist, turned, and hurled the powerful ape over his shoulder.

MARIETTA TO SEEK $750,000 PROGRAM OF IMPROVEMENTS

Housing, Auditorium, Swimming Pool Included in Proposed List.

MARIETTA, Ga., June 30.—Mayor T. M. Brumby today outlined to the Kiwanis Club a building program which may total $750,000, and includes slum clearance, paving of streets, extension of sewer and water mains, construction of a modern negro school, a city swimming pool, and a $70,000 auditorium-gymnasium.

Organization of the Marietta Housing Authority was completed this afternoon, with T. C. Branson Jr., as chairman and William B. Tate as secretary. Other members are B. F. Boatner, City Attorney L. M. Blair and W. L. Vance senior.

Application for $500,000 will soon be forwarded to Washington housing officials, so that funds can be earmarked.

Mayor Brumby estimated about 300 one-unit dwellings will be built at a cost of $1,600 each. He said rental of the units might be as low as $1.54 weekly. "There is a crying need for negro houses," he said, and added that several negro sections in the city may be demolished for white dwellings, and a negro community established in another section of the city.

"For every house built, one would be destroyed," he said, "and most of the homes would be in the low income group."

Other projects discussed by the mayor included a $70,000 community center with auditorium, gymnasium and manual arts quarters for high school students, to be located at the corner of Winn and Polk streets, adjoining the present Woman's Club. The city would finance this through a PWA loan and grant, approval of which is pending, he said.

Extension of water mains and sewers, to cost about $50,000, has been approved by the State Health Department, and plans will be forwarded to Washington for final approval.

Paving is in progress on 14 city streets, and the mayor said "it is still my ambition to have every street in the city paved." Cost of these projects was not estimated.

Plans for a city swimming pool, and for construction of a modern negro school to replace a wooden building on Lawrence street, also were mentioned by the mayor. Besides, the city improvement plans announced by the mayor, several other large undertakings

Alabaman Weds At Griffin 'Home'

GRIFFIN, Ga., June 30.—Jack Kline, who operates a summer resort at Eden, Ala., never said Griffin until yesterday, but nevertheless he came "home" to be married.

For sentimental reasons, he brought his bride-to-be, Miss Pauline Taylor, of Eden, to Griffin for the ceremony.

Kline told Judge Steve Wallace, county ordinary, who performed the ceremony, that his grandfather, a native German, was one of the early settlers of Spalding county, and that his own father was born and reared in Griffin.

In the county will bring the total construction for Cobb county well above $1,000,000. James T. Manning, attorney for the Cobb Rural Electric Membership Corporation, said he received July 12 for construction of 160 miles of rural power lines in Cobb, Fulton and Cherokee counties. Work on the lines will begin immediately after the letting of the contract, which will total about $140,000.

Work will start tomorrow on Kennesaw Mountain Park. CCC boys will construct trails, improve roadways and prevent further soil erosion in the 2,022-acre park tract, and will demolish unsightly buildings.

The Cobb County Advisory Board has authorized issuance of revenue certificates to finance a waterworks system from Marietta to the Chattahoochee river, and when legal details of the financing of the work are ironed out, construction will be speeded and will probably cost, when complete, about $140,000.

Atlantan Retires After 51 Years In Rail Shops

Frank K. Mahs, 65, of 72 Wadell street, N. E., laid down his tools yesterday afternoon for the last time after working for 51 years in Atlanta railroad shops as a mechanic and train repairer.

Coming from Germany to Atlanta in 1886, Mahs started his apprenticeship the next year with the Richmond & Danville railroad. When that line became a part of the Southern Railway System, he was employed by the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad, where he has worked for the past 45 years.

The highlights of his career came in 1892, he said, when he repaired the historic locomotive, "The Texas," now in the Cyclorama building in Grant park. Three years later, he put a new jacket on the famous "General," which is now on exhibition in Chattanooga.

"Since that time, great strides have been made in engine construction," he added. "I want to keep abreast with the times although I am retired, and I am looking forward to a ride on a streamliner when I go to California later this summer."

A former treasurer in the Hill Street First Methodist church, he intends devoting much of his time to church work.

MRS. EPSIE FORBES DIES AT HOME HERE

Mrs. Epsey Elizabeth Forbes, 79, resident of Atlanta for more than 32 years, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 1119 Uncle Remus avenue, S. W., after a nine-week illness.

She had lived in West End for the past 15 years and was a member of the Associate Reform Presbyterian church. She was a native of Ebenezer, S. C.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. W. T. Wells, of Glover, S. C., and eight grandchildren. Funeral services will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

U. S. ALLOTS $72,450 FOR 2 STATE PROJECTS

Two additional allotments for Georgia, amounting to $72,450, were announced yesterday by H. T. Cole, regional PWA administrator.

The projects call for the erection of a hospital at Moultrie, for which $56,250 in federal grants have been allocated, and the building of a high school at Temple to cost $16,200.

STOCK EXCHANGE NAMES PRESIDENT

31-Year-Old William McC. Martin Elected in Surprise Action of Leaders.

NEW YORK, June 30.—(AP)—Taking Wall Street completely by surprise, the New York Stock Exchange today chose 31-year-old William McC. Martin Jr., as its first paid president, passing over a list of 200 names which included prominent men in banking, education, business and the law.

Climaxing a month-long drive for internal reform in the nation's number one securities market, in the course of which Martin, a member, had occupied the non-salaried position of chairman of the exchange, and was its acting president, the young St. Louis broker was lifted into office on less than 24 hours' notice by a unanimous vote of the governors of the exchange.

Retires From Firm. To comply with the constitution of the exchange, Martin announced his retirement from the St. Louis brokerage firm of A. G. Edwards & Sons, and arranged to sell his "seat" on the exchange here.

The office of chairman will revert to Charles B. Harding, of the New York firm of Smith, Barney & Company, who becomes "acting" chairman. SEC Commissioner John W. Hanes was formerly a partner in Harding's firm.

The nominating committee has the right to suggest a candidate for successor to Martin as chairman, but need not do so. No decision had been reached immediately as to the committee's choice.

As president, Martin will receive $48,000 annual salary and become the first such paid head of the market since trading started under the buttonwood tree in Wall Street 146 years ago.

That his selection was definitely pointed to spotlight the exchange's determination to work out methods of "living" with federal regulation was indicated in the fact the public announcement made by the exchange was accompanied by a signed communication to Martin from William O. Douglas, chairman of the SEC.

It referred to "your courage and ability to bring about expeditious action toward the objectives which must be jointly ours and yours," and continued:

"I want to pledge to you our fullest co-operation and our unqualified support in working out the solution to the items of unfinished business which are before us."

As respected, informal young Martin talked to reporters following his selection he made clear his position when he said of the exchange, once referred to as a "gentleman's club."

"My endeavor will be to make it a public service institution. I fully recognize my responsibilities to the public."

PRICES OF MELONS ADVANCE TO $80

Commodities Corporation Assures of Market Support.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—The Surplus Commodities Corporation, advised Senator George Democrat, Georgia, today it would purchase enough southern watermelons to support the market.

Reports at the agency's headquarters today, George said, indicated the price had advanced from $32 to about $80 a car.

News of Gate City Told in Paragraphs

Police aid was sought yesterday in locating Mrs. Lillie May Seaman, 28, who disappeared June 21 from her home in Dunwoody.

She is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, with gray eyes and brown hair. R. Seaman, her husband, said she failed to return from a trip to the post office.

O. W. Hammond, who is connected with the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, was elected dean of the Delta Alumni senate of the Delta Theta Phi fraternity at its monthly meeting, Horace Sandiford, district chancellor, announced yesterday. Thad F. Blackstock will represent the senate at the national convention in Chicago August 31-September 2, Mr. Sandiford said.

Jon Dean Steward, clerk of the United States district court, will begin his 49th year as an attaché of the court today. He first became associated with the federal court as a stenographer in 1890.

Welfare Board Plans to Use RFC, WPA Funds on Milledgeville Projects.

An early start on the development program at Milledgeville through the use of both RFC and WPA funds was forecast yesterday by Chairman Arthur Lucas of the State Board of Public Welfare.

Chairman Lucas said the board planned to use funds obtained through discounted Western & Atlantic railroad rentals from the RFC to purchase supplies and materials and to launch the program with WPA labor.

Without Funds. "The welfare board, of course, is without funds of its own to carry on this program and we believe that the WPA and RFC plan is the only way we can get anything accomplished," Chairman Lucas said.

Asked when he expected the actual start of the program, Lucas said as soon as we get our RFC money.

Meanwhile Governor Rivers conferred with Colonel O. K. Yeager, WPA engineer in charge of public buildings; R. L. McDougall, chief WPA engineer for Georgia and others on the general state building program. Colonel Yeager was in Atlanta as the personal representative of Administrator Harry H. Hopkins.

Rivers, Hobbs Confer. Governor Rivers also conferred during the day with William Hobbs, attorney for the RFC regarding the issuance of W. & A. warrants which the RFC has agreed to discount. These warrants are being drawn by the state department of law and will be issued to the RFC as soon as that detail is completed.

The chief executive was hopeful for an early start on the state building program. "We have our plans ready and are meeting with hearty co-operation from all federal agencies," the Governor said. "I believe that in the course of a few months we will have a large portion of our needed buildings under way."

New Building Sought. One building to which serious consideration is being given is a proposed new state office building. It is understood that the state has had approved by the PWA. This project, a new dining hall and auditorium at the North Georgia College, Dahlonega, will be contracted for July 1938.

FERRA Ends Life On Double Line - - - Of Red Ink

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—A bookkeeper drew a double red line in a ledger in the WPA office here today, and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, one of the oldest and richest agencies of the New Deal, gave up the ghost.

Its cash register once sang to the tune of $1,000,000,000 per annum. But when its congressional lease on life ran out at the end of the fiscal year today its assets amounted to only $250,000. This automatically goes to the treasury to pay any claims on the FERA estate.

FERRA was born on May 22, 1933. Its doom was pronounced on June 22, 1936, when congress directed the administrator to wind up its affairs gradually.

LILLIAS H. STEWART DIES AT AGE OF 35

Lillias H. Stewart, 35, of 963 Crew street, S. W., died at the home of a cousin, Mrs. Marjorie Epps, 2318 Oakview road, N. E., yesterday afternoon.

Surviving are a sister Mrs. Doris Thompson; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Stewart, of 1119 Uncle Remus avenue, S. W., and two brothers, Charles P. and Jack Stewart, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

SECOND CHILD IS BORN TO ACTRESS BLONDELL

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—(AP)—An eight-pound girl was born today to Joan Blondell and her husband, who is in the hospital here, in the movies, in a hospital here.

The child is Miss Blondell's second and Powell's first. Powell recently adopted four-year-old Norman Scott Barnes, his wife's first baby. The Powells' daughter will be christened Ellen.

Lewis, of 510 Chapman street, East Point, who died Wednesday in a private hospital, were held yesterday morning in the chapel of Howard L. Carmichael, conducted by the Rev. W. C. Nichols, pastor of the church, under the direction of Howard L. Carmichael.

In Town Today

Indiana Man Tells of 3,000 Door-to-Door Interviews; Chicago Resident for 13 Years Praises Georgia Climate.

A good word for the south was spoken yesterday by James E. Allen, of Dublin, a Georgian of six years' standing. Born in St. Louis, and a resident of Chicago for 13 years before business brought him to Georgia, Allen said he did more boasting about the Georgia climate than did the natives. As for the average Georgian, he finds him "affable and lovable."

Allen is president of a plywood manufacturing concern, a business he describes as "very sensitive to depression."

"For the first four months of this year our business showed a loss. Then conditions improved gradually, and in the last two weeks we received more inquiries and small orders than we received in the previous month."

The improvement in business is due, according to Allen, partly because congress has adjourned, and partly because of the reconciliation of the government and WPA.

"I was sure that as soon as the Securities Exchange Commission straightened out Wall Street, and as soon as Wall Street began to co-operate with the government, conditions would improve. And in the last few months they have gone together."

There is very little interest in politics this year in Laurens county, Allen said. "All principal candidates will be in Dublin on the Fourth of July, Lawrence Camp, Talmadge, McRae and the Governor, but I still think interest in the race is low."

Taxes are Allen's bugaboo. "Until the industries and people have time to catch up with the new taxes imposed heavily in such a short space of time, we must go slow and catch our breath."

He is of the opinion that a more equitable system of taxation would help Georgia. "A man never knows what kind of tax he will have to pay tomorrow under our present system," he said.

EATONTON DECORATOR DISCUSSES WALLPAPER

C. U. Whitman is a house painter and interior decorator of Eatonton, Ga. "Business is good there because we have the right President," Whitman said. "You never hear a word against him in Eatonton." He says he has a good deal of competition in his trade, but meets it with good style.

Eatonton closely follows styles set by New York and various magazines devoted to interior decoration. Right now it's wallpaper, whereas a few years ago painted walls were almost de rigueur there.

"Just fashion," he observed philosophically. Mrs. Whitman dragged him into the elevator before he could elaborate on the whimsies of fashion in Eatonton.

BUSINESS OF SHOES IS REPORTED BOOMING

Selling fall shoes in the early summer, and spring shoes in the late fall is J. R. Morissette's business. He is a resident of Milwaukee, he travels from Richmond to Miami twice a year with a stock of children's and growing young misses' footwear.

Like other businesses, Morissette's is booming. "Many of the stores, especially in the north and west, are running out of stock because of unsettled conditions," he said. "They're replenishing now, and our product is sold out through the middle of August."

Morissette reached Atlanta yesterday from Florida. He finds the better stores in good shape, while the "side street" medium-size stores are kicking. The cheaper stores are hit worse, as the people who buy cheap merchandise are out of jobs," was his reason.

"The south is in good shape considering the condition of other sections of the country, and has no reason to kick up a storm," he said. He is a firm believer in wage and hour legislation. He said: "We have had a minimum wage and hour law in Wisconsin for several years, and it has helped all companies make legitimate merchandise, by killing cut-throat competition."

MONOPOLY HUNTERS WILL MEET TODAY

Group Will Set Out on Trail of "Concentrated Economic Powers."

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—The capital's monopoly hunters will set out on the trail of "concentrated economic power" tomorrow with an organization meeting and a "gabfest."

The 12-man committee—six members from congress and six from the executive branch of the government—intends to meet for the first time, select officers and survey the field it was appointed to investigate.

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, who is expected to be elected chairman, issued a statement tonight saying all of the committee members felt they had "a real opportunity to perform a constructive service."

"We know that the problem before us is to stimulate normal business activity," he said, "so that the unemployed may be put to work at wages that will develop the home market. This market cannot be developed so long as unemployment is on relief, nor can industry be stimulated until the home market is developed."

The expectation was that Representative Sumners, Democrat, Texas, or a member from the department and agencies, would be elected to the vice chairmanship.

Preliminary work is expected by members to take several months, thus postponing the more spectacular side of the investigation—the examination of witnesses in public hearings—until autumn or later.

In addition to O'Mahoney and Sumners, the members of the committee are: Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Senator King, Democrat, Utah, and Representatives Eicher, Democrat, Iowa, and Reese, Republican, Tennessee; Thurman W. Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust law division, of the Justice Department; William O. Douglas, chairman of the Securities Commission; Herman Oliphant, of the Treasury; Richard C. Patterson, assistant secretary of commerce; Isador Lubin, of the Labor Department, and Chairman Garland S. Ferguson, of the Federal Trade Commission.

BRITAIN'S REVENUE DROPS. LONDON, June 30.—(AP)—Treasury returns showed tonight Great Britain's revenue for the first quarter of this financial year declined 6,926,000 pounds ($34,630,000) from a total of 138,813,323 pounds ($694,066,615) in the first quarter of 1937.

Card of Thanks. We wish to thank our many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy shown us during our recent bereavement.

DUNN HITS HOMER TO START RALLY; TEAM DEPARTS

Richards' Nine Will Meet Little Rock Travelers Tonight.

By JACK TROY.

The dynamite long dormant in Cecil Dunn's bat was set off yesterday at Ponce de Leon park and the Cracker left fielder paced the club to a 7-to-3 victory over Nashville's Vols in the final game of the series.

Dunn's initial charge in the second rocked the Vols. He poled the mightiest home run of the year in that inning with Emil Mailho, who had walked, on base. The Crackers scored three runs before they were through.

Then again in the fourth, Dunn smashed a triple off the fence in left, starting another three-run rally. The Crackers scored another run in the fifth and then took it easy the rest of the way as they swept the three-game series.

The tie game of Tuesday night will be played off on Nashville's next appearance here. Two double-headers are scheduled when the Vols return.

'The Second Greatest Show on Earth' Slated at Chocopee July 4

Up at Chocopee where there has just been held the first open-air baptism under lights in this country's history they are making plans to stage a Fourth of July sports show that may rival anything the late Barnum ever thought up.

Called "The Second Greatest Show on Earth," the big sports day embraces all northeast Georgia.

There is, at hand, an outline from the show's self-styled press agent, H. Odell Williams, who is president of the Chocopee Athletic Association and who is even now up to his neck in working out the details.

Williams writes that "We believe that it will be the greatest day with the greatest crowd assembled together since Roosevelt came to Gainesville and we guarantee we will have a longer parade than followed 'that great leader' when he came here."

Pitching into the program with unbounded enthusiasm are more than 200 committeemen, ladies, boys and girls. This many folks are needed to take care of all the details for "The Second Greatest Show on Earth," performing eight hours in Chocopee.

"Everybody is on pins and needles here in the 'Model Village,'" Williams adds. "New Holland and Chocopee will lead with a sock on the button on the glorious Fourth."

The program will begin at 1 o'clock Monday when Hall county's biggest parade starts moving. In the line of parade will be sheriff and deputies, state patrol, city police, New Holland and Chocopee police, the largest shoe in the world, a truckload of animals, including two giraffes and elephants, two brass bands, two string bands, a second grade boys' and girls' band, fire trucks, ambulances and floats, such as the spirit of 1905, 1915, 1925, 1938; New Holland and Chocopee baseball and softball players; also spirit of 1776, scenes of "Gone With the Wind," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "War Between the States," "World War," "Wedding Scene in Year 1900," "The Spirit of 1938."

Each department in the mill will sponsor a float. And following the big parade the fun begins and will continue, as advertised, for eight hours.

Quite a program has been arranged.

CONTESTS, HUNTS AND GAMES.

Chocopee is arranging an elephant hunt that is calculated to make Joe Engel's efforts along that line look strictly amateur. It will include elephants, giraffes, horses, fowl, African

CHICK GALLOWAY, EX-MAJOR STAR, HIS SUCCESSOR

New Skipper Was Member of Cracker 'Kid' Team of 1919.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., June 30. (P)—Eddie Moore was unconditionally released as manager of the Spartanburg team of the South Atlantic baseball league today, and Chick Galloway, of Clinton, S. C., was signed as his successor.

Club President Arthur Willis declined to elaborate on a brief statement, "I have unconditionally released Eddie Moore."

Moore came here this spring from Atlanta, where for three years he managed the Atlanta team of the Southern association.

He was at the helm when Atlanta won two pennants and finished third.

Under his guidance, the Spartans led the league for a short period early in the season, then took a nose dive that landed them in the league cellar.

Galloway comes here from a position as baseball coach at Presbyterian College. A graduate of P. C., "Chick" played his first professional baseball with Atlanta in 1918 and 1919.

The 1919 team was the famous "kid team" which won a pennant for the Crackers.

Advancing to Philadelphia of the American league in 1920, he remained with that club nine years. In 1922, he was voted the best shortstop in the junior major circuit.

He was traded to Detroit in 1927, and saw action with the Tigers for about four months, until he was struck on the head by a pitched ball in July, 1928. The injury removed Galloway from major league ranks, and it was nearly a year before he was able to leave the hospital.

FRANK GUERNSEY BEATS GILLESPIE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 30.—(P)—Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., and Teddy Burwell, of Charlotte, advanced today to semifinals of the mid-Atlantic tennis tournament with easy straight-set victories.

Archie Henderson, of Chapel Hill, defending champion, and Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta, became members of the selected four with wins Wednesday.

The second-seeded Guernsey defeated Campbell Gillespie, of Atlanta, 7-5, 6-2, and Burwell defeated Bill Turner, of Washington, 6-0, 6-4.

Semifinals will send Guernsey against Bobbitt and Henderson against Burwell.

Gillespie Advances To Quarter-Finals

RYE, N. Y., June 30.—(P)—Billy Gillespie, of Atlanta, Scarborough school's crack tennis player, advanced to the quarter-final round of the sixth annual eastern private schools singles championship at Manursing Island Club today.

Gillespie, the national interscholastic champion, whipped Donald S. Andrews, of Hill, 6-2, 6-3.

Kirkland Wins Title, Sets Record

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 30.—Dan Kirkland, 1937 champion, successfully defended his Columbus Country Club golf title here this afternoon, defeating Elliott Waddell, 9 and 7, in the 36-hole finals.

The gangling University of Georgia sophomore played out the match for a medal 66 to set a new course record. The old mark of 67 was held jointly by Fred Haskins, professional, and Pierce Harris.

Kirkland, who also holds the city and invitational tourney titles here, plans a wide campaign this summer. He will start play Sunday in the Griffin invitational meet.

In the Rensselaer tourney here he is a finalist with Jack Slayton and plans to play off this match when he returns from Griffin, where he was runner-up last summer.

Six Share 1st Place In East Lake Bogey

Sixty-two entries competed in the regular midweek bogey golf tournament yesterday at the East Lake Country Club, with six sharing first prize.

Bill Calley, F. O. Rallee, P. D. McCallie, L. A. Scott, J. P. Pullin and H. F. Whitmore all came in with 73's, the winning number.

R. S. Griffith, S. M. Haw, E. G. Lombard and J. S. Blick had 72's, while T. L. Reed, U. Bridges, E. S. Humphries, L. F. Meng, George Fogg, Dr. H. W. Ridley, Julian Erwin, F. G. Quay and J. J. McConneghey had 74's.

Holditch Is Beaten In Louisville Meet

Babbish, Oehmig, Burke and McDowell Enter Collegiate Semi-Finals.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 30.—(P)—Bob Babbish, Detroit; Lewis Oehmig, Virginia; John P. Burke, Georgetown University, and Bert McDowell, Louisiana State, won their way today into the semi-finals of the national intercollegiate golf tourney here.

Babbish eliminated one of the favorites, Willie Turnesa, Holy Cross, 3-2; Oehmig defeated Henry Castillo, Louisiana State, 3-1; Burke downed Stanley Holditch, Georgia Tech, 12-11, and McDowell won from Bill Barclay, Michigan, 2-1, in the 36-hole quarter-finals today.

Babbish meets Burke and Oehmig plays McDowell in the semi-finals, 36 holes, tomorrow.

Burke clipped a stroke from par to get a lead of 15 up over Holditch.

Old-Timers Play Charity Game

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., June 30.

Joe Wheeler Sewell, who jumped from the University of Alabama baseball diamond to the shortstop position on the World Champion Cleveland Indians of 1920 within a single season, left today for Cleveland to take part in an old-time charity game there Sunday in Municipal stadium. Net proceeds will go to relief of destitute ball players and their families.

Sewell will line up with all other regulars of the 1920 Indians in the same batting order used in the World Series which saw the American leaguers defeat Brooklyn, 5 games to 2. Tris Speaker will manage the crew and play centerfield. Larry Lajole will manage the 1908 veterans with Cy Young as one of the pitchers. Stanley Coveleskie, Jim Bagby and Caldwell will pitch for the "youngsters."

Dixisteel Defeats Clarkdale Nine, 7-2

Dixisteel defeated Clarkdale, 7 to 2, Thursday afternoon at Glenn field.

Long limited the visitors to four hits, but allowed two of them to be bunched in the second inning when two runs were scored.

Night Tilt Postponed Because of Darkness

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 30.—(P)—For the first time in more than five years of night baseball at Parkway field, home grounds of the Louisville American association baseball club, a night game was called off tonight because of darkness.

The second game of a double-header was called in the first inning when lights on four of the five standards illuminating the outfield went out.

Moody and Jacobs Again Gain Net Finals at Wimbledon

BUDGE TO PLAY AUSTIN TODAY IN MEN'S FINAL

Two Helms Renew Ancient Rivalry in Big Battle Saturday.

By SCOTTY RESTON.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 30.—(AP)—Helen Wills Moody and Helen Jacobs, those inevitable and incomparable opponents, emerged triumphant from the final round of Wimbledon's singles tennis today.

MOODY.

On Saturday they clash for the All-England tennis championship, picking up their rivalry where they left off in the 1935 finals when Mrs. Moody spotted Helen the second a 5-2 in the third set and then beat her to win her seventh Wimbledon crown.

Mrs. Moody, her feet blistered, her strength gone, eliminated tall, angular Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling, of Germany and Denmark, 12-10, 6-4, after a battle that lasted one hour and 55 minutes.

Miss Jacobs—the girl they didn't seed, the girl who fainted in the clubhouse just before her second-round match—beat the co-favorite, Alice Marble, of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-4.

Thus America can count almost certainly upon winning both of Wimbledon's singles titles. The women's championship now is in the bag. And there were few tonight who conceded Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, of England, any chance against Don Budge in the men's final tomorrow.

But all the drama of this Wimbledon tournament centers on the women's division and the heroic come-backs of America's two Helms.

Nine times since 1924 Mrs. Moody has come to this old ivy-fringed center court. Every time she has reached the final. And now, trying for her eighth title—a record if she makes it—she finds herself opposed once more by her Berkeley (Cal.) rival.

Miss Jacobs seems to have lived most of her life in the shadow of "Queen Helen."

The only time she really managed to beat her, in the 1938 American championship finals, Helen the first was injured. The only other time she seemed certain of beating her—when she got to match point in the ninth game of the 1935 finals—Mrs. Moody produced that same competitive spark which brought her through again today.

BUDGE.

When Hill entered the lineup at third, the Vols tried to punt on him. He retaliated by hitting the double that beat them in the ninth. The night before his home run brought a tie the hard way and gave the Crackers the all-star game. The Vain Vols breezed into Atlanta boasting that they had made the then league-leading Travelers quit. They won four of five.

bushmen as tribesmen, native Congo women, explorers and hunters who are real marksmen.

There will be a snoopers' contest, questionnaire over the loudspeaker, gymnastics, real circus clowns, terrapin races, pie-eating contest, man's nursing contest with baby nipple, greased pig race, tap dancing, baseball, softball, tennis and a paper doll contest. All in eight hours.

Appropriate prizes have been arranged for all events. You could go on and on about Chicopee's big sports day. But suffice to say there will be eight full hours of fun, laughter and entertainment.

And there is no sense, anyway, in giving out all the details. In order to appreciate what they're going to put on it will be necessary to see it.

They had a great day at Chicopee on the Fourth of July last year. But the program this year makes anything in the past pale into insignificance.

The entire community is working on it. Nothing more need be said. The second biggest show on earth will provide eight full hours of fun.

HILL IS UNFAIR.

There was a sign in front of the Nashville dugout early yesterday, reading:

"Johnny Hill is unfair to Nashville."

It was not, of course, put up by the Vol players but they would have a perfect right to picket the popular Cracker third baseman.

When Hill entered the lineup at third, the Vols tried to punt on him. He retaliated by hitting the double that beat them in the ninth.

The night before his home run brought a tie the hard way and gave the Crackers the all-star game.

The Vain Vols breezed into Atlanta boasting that they had made the then league-leading Travelers quit. They won four of five.

Asked about the Crackers, they said: "They're a different kind of team altogether."

The Crackers are a different kind of team and one hears they may not have so much incentive once they get their full lineup back on the field.

They'll only have the incentive of a pennant. And, besides, why worry about them having an intact lineup? No sooner does one Cracker return than another goes out.

Larry Miller is the latest. A sinus infection prevented him from accompanying the team when it departed last night for Little Rock. He was left here under the care of a doctor.

This trip will give the club a chance to try out Ted Petrosky, the former Georgetown star, again. There are double-headers scheduled Sunday and Monday.

The Crackers play two Sunday at Little Rock and then hop over to Memphis and play two more on the Fourth. They embarked last night on the toughest trip of the season. If they come through this one with .500 baseball it will be remarkable.

THE CUBS ARE DIZZY.

With an investment of $185,000 still on the bench, the Chicago Cubs have every reason to be dizzy.

They had counted on Dizzy Dean being the man to lead them out of the wilderness and into the promised land of pennantdom. But Diz, whose pitching trouble dates back to a drive he stopped on the toe, is of no help. He is of no more value than a cheer leader. And pro ball clubs don't need cheer leaders. They need pitching.

Diz, the close observers say, unconsciously favored his injured toe and put a strain on his arm when he changed his style of throwing. That, they say, is why he can't pitch today. It seems logical enough.

OLD SARGE TO PLAY.

Sergeant Jim Bagby leaves today for Cleveland where he will make one more appearance on the mound as a pitcher for the 1920 Indians.

The Indians of 1920 will oppose the Indians of 1938. Cy Young is one of the pitchers for the latter nine.

"Young Jim is supposed to be in Cleveland for the game," Sarge said yesterday. Proceeds of the old-timers' game will go to the relief of destitute ball players and their families.

BLACK CRACKERS TO PLAY TONIGHT

Atlanta's Black Crackers, of the Negro American league, return to Ponce de Leon tonight at 8 o'clock to open a four-game series with the fast-stepping Jacksonville Red Caps, also a league team. Tonight is ladies' night.

The Black Crackers, under their new manager, Dick Lundy, star shortstop, are still setting a fast pace and their record is nine games won and four lost. They expect a stern battle in each game of the Jacksonville series.

A single game will also be played Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock and there will be a double-header Sunday at 2 p. m.

The Black Cracker pitching staff is in top shape and T. Howard will likely get the nod tonight, although Harding and Mitchell are ready.

Preacher Henry, mound ace of the Red Caps, is likely to be on the firing line.

White fans, who find these games highly interesting and always enjoyable, are offered the usual considerations. There will be a special ticket office and entrance and a special reserved section. All automobiles will be given police protection.

ABBREVIATED COSTUMES KEEP NETMEN COOL

Tennis continues to claim the interests of many Atlanta men during the late afternoon hours at the Piedmont Driving Club. It's a matter of serving—the ball or the purpose. The men who add net scores wear shorts and slacks, caps and visors, and many play with no head covering at all. At the left Cody Laird was snapped by the photographer as he served a fast one to his partner. Notice he wears shorts and shirt. His cap is of baseball pattern and is one of the favored styles for play on the courts. At the right, Jimmy Dreger finds that wearing white linen slacks and shirt result in chalking up a good score. He is one of the "bare-headed" group of Atlantans.

Ben Brown, Burroughs To Fight Here Tonight

ON SPOT TONIGHT

Ben Brown, whose fists have carried him to sixth ranking among the middleweights of the world, tonight faces the boxer who has caused him more embarrassment and concern than any other fighter alive in the 10-round headliner of a 36-round show at Warren arena.

Battling Burroughs, of Pasaiguala, Miss., claimant of the southern welterweight title and the lad who has shouted to the fight world from the houseboats that Atlanta's Ben has sidestepped and eluded him for a solid year, finally gets his long-awaited crack at Brown's chin.

Both boys are superbly conditioned and are prepared to go the full distance, but neither thinks it will go beyond the fourth round, each claiming he'll win by a knockout. Both promise to come out swinging and indications are the battle will be every bit as thrilling as was their spectacular meeting at Ponce de Leon last summer, in which Brown was accorded a close and unpopular decision.

There is no love lost between the pair. The preliminaries stack up as first class, Frankie Allen and Harold Glynn, Atlanta middleweight,

20-MILE FINAL, 5 SPRINT RACES SET FOR SUNDAY

Events Are Preparatory To Holiday Program On Lakewood Oval.

Five sprint races and a 20-mile final, preceded by rapid-fire time trials will form the card for Sunday July 3, with July 4 offering a slightly varied program of auto races at Lakewood Speedway for the double-barreled AAA events which will feature Indianapolis Speedway talent and familiar faces.

And to assure that there will be no delays, which was the cause of AAA being relegated away from Lakewood in 1936, Hankinson Speedways will have five men on the job and the AAA contest board will be formidably represented by Ted Allen, Washington, chief of that body, and Charles Bishop, secretary-manager of the Atlanta Motor Club, who will be the new Triple A official representative for 1938 Lakewood events.

The fact that Allen is coming here marks the Lakewood races as the most important of the country. Ralph Hankinson will be here in person for the first time since he started managing the races in 1933 and with him will be the veteran Jimmie Malone, Bill Breitenstein, the Georgia Cracker Sam Nunn and Douglas Wallace. Many of the officials who served for Hankinson and President Mike Benton, of the Southeastern Fair in the past, will be back at their posts Sunday and Monday.

It is expected that the annual Diamond Jewelry Company trophy will be awarded in the semi-feature events, with points standings counting. This firm is again cooperating in The Constitution Soap Box Derby in which Hankinson, Benton and Breitenstein have offered silver trophies.

Thursday race activities included entries from Bill Sockwell, Greensboro, N. C.; Gene Sovell, Macon, and Buddy Benson, Adairville, Ky. Warmups will be permitted on the Lakewood course this afternoon from 2:15 p. m. to 4 o'clock.

Arlington Classic Looms as Turf 'Natural' of Season

$30,000 EVENT MAY DETERMINE BEST 3-YEAR-OLD

Lawrin, Dauber, Menow, Fighting Fox, Bull Lea, Stagehand Nominated.

By EARL HILLIGAN.
CHICAGO, June 30.—(AP)—Arlington Park's $30,000-added Classic, to be run July 23, shaped up today as a turf "natural" which may bring order out of the chaos surrounding the season's three-year-old racing championship.

Yesterday's additions to the many surprise developments of the year were Menow's victory over War Admiral and Lawrin's "empty" victory scored at Hollywood Park with Dauber nursing a swollen tendon in the barn. John Hertz, Arlington's executive board chairman, views those situations as "ill winds" which may blow a championship field into the famed Arlington feature.

NINE LENGTHS.

Menow, Hal Price Headley's colt, won the Massachusetts handicap by nine lengths with the great Admiral finishing out of the money. On the west coast, the anticipated Lawrin-Dauber duel failed to materialize when Dauber was scratched. With Lawrin, Dauber and Menow in a list of Classic nominations which also includes The Chief, Stagehand, Fighting Fox, Bull Lea, Cravat and Pasteurized, the classic looks like a great race.

Hertz is confident that the field

DYNAMITE ROUNDS 3D—AFTER CLOUTING ONE OF SEASON'S LONGEST HOMERS

Cecil "Dynamite" Dunn unleashed stored-up power yesterday and led the Crackers' attack on the Vols by smashing a homer and triple in three official trips to the plate. Dynamite, who has been in the very center of a batting slump, hit a tremendous wallop over the negro bleachers for his third homer of the year. He followed it up with a triple, which bounced off the bleacher fence.

--CRACKERS--

and Bill Crouch, their wonder pitcher.

When the Crackers started slugging Crouch, who won 11 straight games this season, Manager Charley Dressen did not even make a gesture of warming up another pitcher.

Apparently he realized that if Crouch couldn't stop the Crackers there was no use to waste another pitcher.

The victory for Harris was his eighth of the season. He was out two weeks with a bad tooth. It is very likely that he already would have won at least 10 games if he had been able to pitch those two weeks.

It isn't often the Crackers get the jump on the opposition they did yesterday. They had seven runs before Haas came up in the sixth with two mates aboard and dropped a homer over the fence in the left field stands.

So, with a record of six straight victories, and leading Little Rock by three and a half games, the boys departed last night to take issue with the defending champions in their own park. They play a single game tonight with Ted Petrosky, the ex-collegian, due to pitch.

The home stand was their most profitable of the season. The Crackers won eight games, lost two and tied two. Previously they had had a hard time getting started here.

They knocked Nashville right out of the running temporarily. The Vols and knocked Little Rock out before coming here.

Of the Crackers' 10 hits yesterday, Peters, Dunn and Bolling collected two apiece.

HARRIS GIVES 7 HITS.

Harris held the Vols to seven. Haas was the only Vol getting as many as two hits. Three of the visitors' hits were of the infield variety.

A crowd of 1,415 was impressed by the Crackers' determination and spirit. It's a tough club to beat at any time.

A summary of the scoring in the final Nashville game is as follows: The Crackers cut down the Vols in the second with an unusual double play. With Haas on first, Duke bounced to Bolling, who fired the ball to Peters. Peters shot it back to Harris, covering first.

DUNN HOMERS.

Dynamite Dunn hit the longest home run of the season with Mailho on base to start a three-run rally in the second. Dunn's mighty wallop cleared the big sign in left and bounced off the corner of the stands. Then Bolling and Kimbrell followed with hits. Harris struck out. Peters blasted a single to left, scoring Bolling. Kimbrell was trapped between third and home and was tagged out.

Dunn started another three-run outburst in the fourth. Dunn tripled off the fence in deep left. It missed by about a foot of going in the stands. Lipscomb scored him with a sharp single. Bolling beat out a hit to third. Kimbrell grounded out. Harris bounced to Crouch and Lipscomb was trapped between third and home. Blaemire tagged him out. Peters hit to Rospond, who threw low to first. The ball got away from Haas and Bolling and Harris scored.

ONE MORE.

The Crackers added their seventh run in the fifth. Mauldin beat out a hit to short and Mailho beat out a bunt to Crouch. Dunn sacrificed. Lipscomb walked, loading the bases. Mauldin scored as Brown threw out Bolling.

Haas' homer with two on gave the Vols their first runs in the sixth. Walker walked and Barath went into run for him. Rodda popped to Bolling. Chapman singled to center. Haas then parked one in the stands in left.

That was the Vols' only threat as Harris pitched steadily for the remainder of the game as the Crackers cleaned the series.

BUFORD DEFEATS TUBIZE, 10 TO 2

ROME, Ga., June 30.—Buford's Lefty Gene Nix gave the largest baseball crowd of the season—3,000 fans—something to remember him by as he pitched and battled Buford to a 10-to-2 victory over Tubize here tonight.

Nix scattered nine hits and struck out 11 men in winning his 18th victory of the season against a single defeat. In addition, he gathered three singles and drove in four runs. In other words, he put on quite a show for the Rome fans.

Rucker, with three singles, led the losing cause at bat. Gerald McQuinn clouted a home run, double and single for the winners, while Baxter had a double and two singles.

The Shoemakers meet Canton in Buford tomorrow at 8:30.

Jaycees Name Yates For National Award

Charlie Yates, British amateur golf champion, will be nominated for the distinguished service award of the United States Chamber of Commerce, it was decided at a meeting of Atlanta Jaycees yesterday.

The award is made annually by the national organization on the basis of special service rendered during the year.

Yates was principal speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Junior Chamber yesterday. He related some of his golfing experiences while winning the championship.

He explained that the courses on which he played are much harder than those in the United States, since they are watered less frequently. The balls roll much easier, he said, adding that the greens are two to three times larger than those in this country.

William A. Horne Jr., president of the Atlanta Junior Chamber, reported on his trip to the national convention in Oakland, California.

McEwen Will Battle Young Art O'Mahony

Promoter Jason Thompson, who opened Atlanta's new wrestling arena, the Hemphill arena, comes right back with three more Friday night.

In the main event Friday night, he has signed Cowboy Billy McEwen, the Texas terror, and young Art O'Mahony, Irish (175 pounds). O'Mahony has been in this country only several months, but he has created plenty of excitement in mat circles with his "Irish weed" hold, something no other wrestler is able to use.

The semi-final brings together Joe Banaski, former world's lightweight champion, who defeated Chuck Powell last Friday. And in the first match fans will see two former heavyweight sensations in action—Fred Carone, the Italian, and Nick Elitch. The first match starts at 8:30 o'clock.

Here's What You Need For a Summer Wardrobe

SMART SUMMER TOWNWEAR

The man on the left is wearing a two-colored-striped Palm Beach suit, with Panama hat, Palm Beach tie, light-striped shirt. The man on the right is wearing a Glenurquhart-checked tropical worsted. His tie is printed foulard, his hat a featherweight felt.

Three Divisions: Everyday, Dress-Up and Sportswear constitute a Minimum for Every Man—Don't Forget Evening Wear.

By ROBERT FAIRCHILD
EDITOR MEN'S FASHIONS

Times being what they are, I've been getting letters from men all over the country who want to know what they can "get by with" in the way of summer clothing this summer. They haven't been using those exact words, but that's what they all want to know—what's the minimum they need to preserve the "balanced summer wardrobe" I've been writing about, and how can they do it within their budget.

Well, I've described in previous columns the virtues and the characteristics of nearly everything in the summer-suit lineup, from Palm Beaches and Nor-East, in tropical worsteds to slacks and seersuckers and Congo Cloth. As far as hitting the budget line is concerned, I won't attempt to do that—not that it can't be done, but it depends on the individual and his own requirements.

We can say that for the average city-dwelling male there should be a minimum of three suits, plus a summer dinner jacket and trousers, of course. We can divide them roughly into three divisions, according to the purposes for which they are intended.

Slacks to match or contrast are of course an integral part of the summer sportswear ensemble. All the fabrics mentioned are suitable for this half of the mix or matching suit.

FACTS BEHIND OUR HUMAN CUSTOMS...

Many people call their wages "SALARY" Why?

In the early days of the ROMAN EMPIRE salt was regarded as being almost as valuable as gold. Roman soldiers received all or part of their pay in salt. This salt stipend was termed SALARIUM, from whence comes our present-day word SALARY, denoting pay for services rendered. As customs are passed along from one generation to another

But whether you say Salary or Wages, both mean the same. Two other words, QUALITY and GLENMORE have the same meaning. For two generations the GLENMORE institution has produced only Kentucky whiskey of the finest type. This is why Kentucky deep-well water is used... why only selected grains go into the distillation... why every drop of GLENMORE receives only the most faithful care and attention in every phase of its preparation. So remember, you need never say QUALITY if you remember to say GLENMORE.

WOMAN AGAINST WOMAN

By MARGARET CULKIN BANNING

INSTALLMENT I

Stephen Holland was riding up in the elevator before it came to him that it was strange he had asked Dora to come to his office. What had he to ask her, what had she to answer which could not have been said at home? An uncomfortable, even humiliating thought was edging into his consciousness. He forced it back. It was too preposterous that he and Dora could not talk freely before his wife. Resolutely he told himself that he had overworked on this case, that his nerves were cutting strange capers; that his imagination was putting up emotional hurdles in his life.

What he had feared all day Dora would say, he did not know. When at last they were alone in his office, nothing could have been more shattering than what she was saying. For she was obviously telling a lie. That Dora should ever lie to anyone would have seemed unbelievable. But to him—

"Please don't Dora," he said. "I have a right to the truth and I know, as well as you, that you leaving us is not at Mrs. Holland's suggestion or wish."

Dora did not look at him as she moistened her lips and spoke. There was bewilderment, there was hurt, there was something like anger in his voice as he interrupted her.

"This lie is even wilder," he said. "I've known you for 33 years—you've told me everything about your life before I knew you—I've heard all about your family—and now you tell me you have a sister in California and you are going to her. I—" and when he saw her eyes filling with tears, he stopped.

"Did I ever lie to you, Stevie," she said, in her emotion using the name she had called him when he was a child. "You know I never did. And didn't I teach you to be truthful, as the old rule says by practice as well as precept? So, if I have lied to you now won't you believe I had to? And won't you please just let me go?"

"I will not," he answered firmly. "All my life, you have been as much—in some ways, more to me than my mother and now you suggest walking out as if you were some nurse we had got through an agency. What is the matter with you I don't know. But you are going home and have a talk with Mrs. Holland, put Ellen to bed and forget all this nonsense. If you have some crazy idea that Mrs. Holland doesn't like you, get it out of your head."

"It isn't that," she said in a strange way as if she were speaking against her will, but could not keep the words back. "It is that I don't like her. I can't go on living in the same house with her. You must believe me when I say it is better for all of us that I go quietly now."

"What has she done to you, Dora?" he asked in a hard voice, clipping his words.

"Nothing to me. And if she did I could stand it perhaps. I didn't mean to say this—I don't want to say it now, but I can't help it. You wanted the real reason—here it is. There is no love in your house, except between you and Ellen—and me. I have tried not to see it, but I can see nothing else. Mrs. Holland is beautiful and she can be charming. But she is selfish and hard. Even worse, she is bound to rule. She calls the tunes and you and Ellen must jig to them. It's getting worse. You haven't a mind of your own any more, or if you have you hide it. That's one reason you overwork all the time. She hasn't interfered with your work yet—perhaps she won't, for she is ambitious and wants you to be a great lawyer. But there is nothing else she won't do. I know you don't quarrel—any more. That's because you always let her have her way. Why, she's even got your own mother believing you're a bit of a fool—a dear one, of course, but a fool in everything except your heart and mind. Look into your heart and mind, Stevie, and tell me if I am right or wrong?"

He felt he should be angry: A man did not allow anyone, even the woman who had cared for him all his life, to say such things of his wife. He was not angry. He was stunned. But his wife held. He must defend his wife.

"You are mad, quite mad," he said. "You are so devoted to me that you do not see things in their true perspective. You don't understand my wife, at all!" He paused a moment and then said softly: "I'm sorry, more than I can say that we should part like this. Goodbye, Dora—and thank you for everything through all these years."

She rose and walked to the door. Then she turned back. "I pray with all my heart that I'm wrong, Stevie."

She went out quickly without looking back.

He was glad when he had seen his last caller, dictated his last letter. Yet he dreaded going home. What Dora had said was absurd, he told himself. He knew she was unjust to Cynthia, he assured himself. He would go home and prove it, once and for all, to his own satisfaction.

On the sidewalk outside the office building, a street vendor was winding up little mechanical men and sending them marching along the curb. Stephen bent down and picked one up, flicking a dime to the man. He had never done such a thing before, but for some reason he felt he must buy that toy.

When he reached his home, the maid told him Mrs. Holland was taking a shower, so he went directly to the nursery. He wound the toy, gently opened the door a crack, dropped to one of his knees and sent the little man scurrying into the room. Ellen, sitting at a little table having her supper, shrieked with delight. A woman bending over the table turned quickly. She shrieked, too, but it was not with delight, as the toy hit her ankle.

"I'm so sorry," said Stephen.

"It's quite all right," she answered, in a tone which suggested it was altogether wrong. "I'm the new nurse, Miss Van Horne."

Ellen had left the table and rushed to him.

"It's for me—the cunning little man, isn't it, daddy? Is it my birthday or Christmas or something?"

"It's because I love you," he said. "That's the best reason there is for giving a person anything. And—Ellen, tell me does it look like me?"

She looked at it carefully and then told him seriously it didn't look like him at all. She said it, looked exactly like Pinocchio whose picture was in her story book. She would get the book and show him.

"I think Ellen had better finish her supper," said the nurse.

"I think I would rather talk to my father," protested Ellen.

"Miss Van Horne is right, sweetheart," said her father. "I mustn't interfere with your meals, and you mustn't be rude to Miss Van Horne. So—what do you say, when you are all ready for bed, coming in to see me and I'll read you a story."

"All right, daddy," said Ellen going back to the table.

Cynthia came in from the dressing room, just as he opened the door to the bedroom. He thought he had never seen her look more beautiful than she did just then in her fluffy negligee. She ran to him and put up her face for a kiss.

"Hard day, darling?" she asked. "So-so," he answered. "I won't have any other kind for a while, I think. You know this is a hard case."

"I know, dear. I know you love your work, but you mustn't overdo it. You may be the most brilliant young lawyer ever known in this part of the country, but you can't work all the time. You need some relaxation."

"You are speaking wise words, lady fair," he answered. "And that is just what I'm going to have this evening. I'll tell you you keep on that charming whatever-it-is and I'll get into my lounging pajamas and . . ."

"Why, Steve darling, you haven't forgotten, have you, that we're dining with the Mortons tonight?"

"I haven't," he said, and from her shoulder abruptly.

"I have not forgotten," he said crisply, "because I never knew it."

"But I told you," she said firmly, "all of a week ago."

"You told me we were invited," he said. "And I'm going to have this evening. I'll tell you you keep on that charming whatever-it-is and I'll get into my lounging pajamas and . . ."

"He's one of the most powerful men in the state—"

"Which doesn't keep him from being yellow all the way through."

"You mightn't detect him so if he threw the Thompson bankruptcy case in your lap, perhaps."

"I wouldn't touch it—or anything else he is connected with. He may be a big shot now—he's been a clever dodger so far, but—"

"There's no time to go into that, Steve," he interrupted. "You have barely time to dress, now."

"I'm not going," he said. "Phone and say—I don't care what you say, except that I'm not coming."

Cynthia put her arms around his neck. Her voice was soft and pleading as she spoke.

"You know I can't do that at this hour," she said. "I'm sorry, Steve—I didn't know you felt so deeply. But we've got to go—so be good for my sake and hurry."

He knew he should refuse—what was it Dora had said—but he couldn't.

"All right, this once, to save your face," he said. "But never again. Is that plain or shall I spell it out?"

She missed him lightly and ran into the dressing room.

Continued Tomorrow.

Vets' Dance Proceeds Will Send Underprivileged Children to Camp

Louis J. Dinkler Post Expects To Provide Fresh-Air Outing and Wholesome Food for at Least 40 Girls and Boys.

A midsummer dance for the benefit of underprivileged children in Atlanta will be sponsored by the Louis J. Dinkler Post No. 3563, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Friday night, July 15, at the Ansley hotel, H. W. Drane, commander, announced yesterday.

All proceeds from the dance outside of expenses will be used to send boys and girls to the Atlanta Mission's summer camp, near Hapeville. Commander Drane said the post expects to send at least 40 children to the camp.

The dance, which will be held in the civic room of the Ansley hotel, will begin at 9 o'clock. There will be a floor show and door prizes. Tickets will be $1 per couple.

More Funds Needed.

Dr. Felton Williams, director of the Atlanta Mission, has issued numerous appeals calling upon Atlantans to make contributions in order that more youngsters may have a chance to enjoy the wholesome environment of the mission's camp.

At least $5 is required to keep one child at the camp a week. Commander Drane said his post hopes to provide $5.92 per child.

"I think this camp for underprivileged children is one of the most humanitarian projects ever undertaken in Atlanta," the post commander declared. "Every civic-minded Atlantian should get behind Dr. Williams and help him in carrying on this work. At the camp the boys and girls get supervised play, religious training, and plenty of good, healthful food, as well as many other benefits."

Girls at Camp.

This week 29 girls are attending the camp. For the past two weeks boys have been enjoying its advantages. Dr. Williams pointed out that 41 boys between the ages of 4 and 12 gained a total of 94 pounds during their stay. Some added as much as seven pounds each.

After hours of hard play, the children gather around a table filled with fresh vegetables, eggs, milk and other wholesome food and eat to their heart's content. All of the vegetables are grown on land cultivated by the mission. Many of the children who are selected to go to the camp are suffering from undernourishment.

Competent leaders are in charge of the children. Story hours and religious services are conducted each day.

Dr. Williams expressed appreciation to the fifth district of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and to Hapeville Sunday schools for furnishing additional workers during the stay.

Any person wishing to make a contribution so that other boys and girls may go to the camp may send their donations to the Atlanta Mission, 125 Ivy street.

COCKE ELECTED BANK EXECUTIVE

Named Vice President by Board of Directors of Fulton National.

Erle Cocke was elected a vice president of the Fulton National Bank at the monthly meeting of the bank's directors yesterday.

Cocke recently resigned as executive in this area for the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Federal National Mortgage Association, the RFC Mortgage Company, and other branches of the RFC to accept the position of manager of the Fulton Bank's new Candler building office. Bank officials said yesterday the new office would be opened about September 1.

The directors also voted a semi-annual dividend of $3.50 on 10,000 shares of stock. The dividend is payable in two installments. The first payment of $1.75 will be made today, while the second payment will be made October 1.

MRS. J. V. JONES, 46, WAR VETERAN, DIES

Wife of Methodist Pastor Served With Field Hospital Unit.

Mrs. J. V. Jones, 46, wife of the pastor of the Avondale Methodist church, died yesterday afternoon in a private hospital, where she had been seven months.

At one time in charge of the Emory University hospital, Mrs. Jones served in France during the World War with the Emory medical unit and was cited twice by the French government for distinguished service.

She received injuries while serving in a field hospital during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne advances. The injuries, it was believed by physicians, resulted in her death yesterday.

Born Near Lavonia. A native of Hart county, she was the former Ella May Walters, and was reared on a farm near Lavonia. She received training as a nurse in Atlanta hospitals. She was one of the first women in Atlanta to volunteer for war service.

When she returned, she was placed in charge of Emory University hospital, a position she held in 1923 when she met and married Mr. Jones, then a theological student.

For the past year she and her husband have lived in Avondale Estates.

Surviving, besides the husband, are five sisters, Mrs. W. F. West, of Roxborough, N. C.; Mrs. W. M. Whitworth, of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. M. T. Mathis, of Ashburn, Ga.; Mrs. E. W. Frost, of Texarkana, Ark., and Mrs. Lena W. Fisher, of Atlanta, and three brothers, J. A. and P. B. Walters, of Lavonia, and L. C. Walters, of Bear Creek, Ala.

MARTIN STANDING BY SUSPENSION OF FIVE

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—A conference between John L. Lewis and Homer Martin, president of the CIO's United Auto Workers' Union, apparently failed today to produce a formula to end factional strife that has split the giant auto union.

Martin emerged from the conference to tell reporters he had "absolutely no intention" to revoke his recent suspension of five high officers of the auto workers' international board.

The suspended officers have been charged by Martin with disrupting a "harmony program," and have been ordered to face trial before the board July 25.

HULL DENIES PLAN FOR MEXICAN LOAN

Answers Intimations Contained in Open Letter to President Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP) Secretary Hull, answering intimations contained in an open letter addressed to President Roosevelt, said today no United States official had urged a $200,000,000 loan to help Mexico build roads.

Therefore, he indicated, no pressure from Great Britain could have caused the United States to withdraw offers of such help to Mexico.

Hull told his press conference the questions, contained in a communication made public yesterday by leaders of 42 peace and labor groups, indicated complete lack of information on this government's attitude regarding the "good neighbor" policy.

Hull said it was the policy of the President not to reply to communications given to the press before he had time to study them.

Asked if it were true a proposal to purchase $10,000,000 of Mexican oil for the United States navy had been withdrawn, Hull said the navy had made no such proposal, and recalled a statute requiring the navy to buy oil produced in the United States.

IN ATLANTA HOSPITALS

In "good" condition yesterday at Crawford W. Long hospital was Mrs. Jack Benson, of College Park, who underwent a major operation more than a week ago.

After undergoing a tonsil operation yesterday, D. T. Hubbard, of 517 Manor drive, N. W., was in "fine" condition last night at the Ponce de Leon Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat infirmary.

Mrs. W. D. W. Hopkins, of 3060 Piedmont road, N. E., was admitted to Emory University hospital yesterday afternoon for medical treatment. Attaches said last night her condition was "good."

Injured while he was riding his bicycle yesterday afternoon, Lavon H. Flournoy Jr., a messenger boy, was admitted to Crawford W. Long hospital with head lacerations. Attaches said his condition was "fairly good" and that he was "resting comfortably." He lives at 51 Georgia avenue, S. W.

Admitted to St. Joseph's hospital last night in "satisfactory" condition, little Agnes Weaver, of 212 Laurel avenue, S. W., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Weaver, is slated to undergo an operation today.

Miss Mary Estes, 18, of Gay, Ga., was admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital yesterday in "good" condition. She is slated to undergo an operation for appendicitis today, attaches said.

J. G. LIETCH DIES; RETIRED DAIRYMAN

Funeral Services Will Be Conducted Today.

J. G. Lietch, 69, retired DeKalb county dairyman, died early yesterday at his home on Boulder Crest drive, N. E.

A native of Gwinnett county, Mr. Lietch owned and operated a dairy in DeKalb county before ill health forced his retirement several years ago.

He was a member of the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning in the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church, conducted by the Rev. J. O. McKibben, the Rev. W. G. Hunnicutt and the Rev. T. T. Da-

MRS. STALLINGS, 30, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Former Telephone Employee Was Ill Four Days.

Mrs. Georgia Alberta Stallings, 30, of 956 Hemphill avenue, N. W., former supervisor for the Southern Bell Telephone Company, died at a private hospital yesterday morning after a four-day illness.

A native of Macon, she came to Atlanta with her family in 1918 and has lived here since. She was a member of the North Atlanta Baptist church.

Surviving are her husband, Alfred S. Stallings Jr.; two daughters, Joan and Mary Lou Stallings; parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hall, of McRae, Ga.; and four sisters, Mrs. W. H. Jackson, Mrs. Ralph Snyder, Mrs. C. H. Giles and Mrs. Ruth Giles, all of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the North Atlanta Baptist church, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Major.
